

Sofia did the last
Convocation at
Burlington College.

VERMONT INSTITUTE OF COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

Opening Ceremony and Festival
September 29, 1973

In Praise of Venture

Mayor Paquette, Commissioner Withey, Dr. LaCasce, Trustees, Faculty, and Students of Vermont Institute for Community Involvement, Honored Guests and Friends...

In the Sixth book of Paradise Lost, John Milton speaks of the strange situation in which Satan marshalls his followers to prepare for battle against their fellow angels - those self same angels

"Who (were) wont to meet
So oft in Festivals of joy and love Unanimous."

It seems to me that we have here this afternoon a delightful reversal of the angelic situation. We have here persons from our state and city governments, persons from our various educational institutions, and persons from our community not directly associated with the academic world. We are all here, each from his own compartmentalized world from which we (all too often) in this sometimes mad world of fierce competition for federal money and for power look with suspicion upon each other, anxious lest while another group gains, we might lose. And so while we too often are drawn up in battle lines against each other we are here today, unanimous in our hope that VICI will prosper and will invite us to celebrate with her the many jubilees in her future.

"to meet in this festival of joy and love."

And it is good for us to be here on this glorious afternoon in our beautiful park in our beautiful city. It is good to be present at openings, at births, for they are signs of life. When Steward asked me to speak I was greatly honored and humbled at the thought of speaking to a crowd of worthies such as this but in the spirit of St. Paul trusted that "I can do all things in Him who strengthens me." Steward explained that the VICI community hoped that the festival this afternoon would be a joyous one and they promptly proceeded to insure that it would be by arranging for Ronald's Overture composed especially for this occasion to be played by the University's Brass Ensemble and for Peter Isaacson's Green Mountain Boy and Firefly. As I was preparing for this occasion I pondered upon the custom of having a prepared address as part of a festival of joy. Quite frankly, it did occur to me that the custom might be an atavistic desire to suffer a bit in the midst of our pleasures lest an angry God drop us into a fiery pit for being too happy. Be that as it may, I plan to do my bit this afternoon if not to add to the joyousness of the occasion, at least not to detract from it by being too ponderous. What I plan to do is not to sound forth dogmatically on education nor is it my plan to give advice. One of my favorite literary compositions is by a fourth-grader who was asked to write a composition on Socrates and in his syllagistic-like form the young student wrote:

Socrates was a philosopher,
He went around giving people advice,
The people poisoned Socrates.

No, what I want to do is merely to muse aloud this afternoon and hope that perhaps one of the thoughts I express will in the beautiful phrase of T. S. Eliot, "tease you into thought."

Would you believe because of the acronym VICI, I toyed with the idea of titling my words: Vani, Vedi, VICI. It was only a passing fancy, I assure you. Mainly because VICI to me is principally Steward LaCasce and I think of Steward as the Renaissance Man and the Renaissance leads me to Erasmus, I decided to speak today In Praise of, don't worry Steward, not folly, but In Praise of Venture. And by venture here, I mean the undertaking that involves risk, the undertaking that requires the leap of faith.

I have not heard that anyone has, but I would be completely surprised if someone hasn't, asked of the VICI family -- Why a new educational institution? Are there not enough established institutions to provide education to all who need it? These questions, it seems to me, pose the greatest challenge to the pioneer. How does he justify the expenditure of time, effort, and resources in his venture?

The obvious response to this challenge is that the true pioneer believes in his venture, believes that he is about to provide something that has not been provided before, believes that established institutions have not provided services in the same manner as he intends to provide them.

I would like to insert parenthetically here that what I say in praise of venture in no way suggest adverse criticism of our traditional institutions, one of which I proudly claim as my own. It seems to me that it is unfortunately an American custom that when we get something new, we sometimes completely destroy what the innovation replaced. The railroad is a good example of this. If we somehow could have developed air travel without dwarfing (or indeed almost annihilating) the railroads we would be happier travelers today. If in urban renewal, and I do bow to experts in this field who understand its' problems whereas I am a mere on-looker, we could preserve some of the old with the new, our young people might have less rootlessness, a greater sense of belonging. I felt optimistic as I watched the astronauts' wives in the costumes and vehicles of an earlier era go to meet their husbands after their mind-boggling odyssey in space; perhaps we are beginning to believe that the new does not replace but rather adds to the old.

And so when I praise VICI as a new venture in education I in no sense intend to impugn the old. I realize that it is the fashionable posture to denigrate our traditional colleges and universities as being citadels of fiscal mismanagement, as abysses of irrelevance, and bastions of amoral if not immoral decadence. And unfortunately our recent national tragedy in which some of our most gifted young men from our most prestigious universities quite obviously did not have the moral stamina to resist peer pressure, gave credence to the inadequacy of our educational institutions. But, should we dwell instead on what our colleges and universities have done positively for us, we would, I am sure, be convinced that they have contributed mightily to our individual and our country's strength. Having, I trust, convinced you that I believe in the continuance of traditional education (with the reservation that the possibility within them of change for the better is great) let me turn now to this new educational venture whose opening we are celebrating today.

Statistics reveal that there are many Vermonters whose education ceases after high school. In fact we rank among the foremost of the states with great numbers of persons who have not availed themselves of post-secondary educational opportunities. That in itself is one of the prevailing reasons for our support of VICI. Let the critics say that the already established institutions can provide the same services and that we, therefore, do not need VICI. I say we have not allured them to our ivory towers and, therefore, we do need VICI.

I have mentioned the word education many times this afternoon and I hesitate to offend your intelligences by pausing to think over with you the meaning of the word from its Latin derivation educere, "to lead out", but I was reinspired when preparing for this afternoon by the words of George B. Leonard. He says:

Education is a process that changes the learner. And learning involves interaction between the learner and his environment and its effectiveness relates to the frequency, variety and intensity of the interaction.

It seems to me that you at VICI have found this secret. Your education will be community involvement. Your education is bound to place your students with frequency, variety, and intensity in relation to their environment. ✓ George Leonard, as you all know, finishes his definition with "Education is, at best, ecstatic." And this is the challenge of you at VICI. You somehow have an obligation to make learning not a burden but a joy, and not just a mild joy but an ecstasy - "a rapture of delight."

I envisage VICI as a place of non-elitism, a haven where all who wish to learn more will be welcome. We educators have (I believe this criticism to be just) created situations in which students lives have been fragmented. We have set the stage so that frequently the intellect is segregated from the emotions, formal education from reality. Historically, we have an interesting situation.

Arnold Toynbee traces the disintegration of the Chinese Empire under the Tsin and Han Dynasties and that of the Roman Empire in part to the attempt to extend formal education from the privileged minority to a wider circle. One reason, Toynbee says:

Was that the former privileged minority's traditional system of education was impoverished in the process of being disseminated. It degenerated into a formal education in book learning divorced from the spontaneous apprenticeship for life. In fact, the art of playing with words was substituted for the art of living.

This pitfall, with the involvement in the community VICI will avoid. We do no service when we lead the learner into the classroom away from life. I thought of VICI as I was reading an article by Phillip Boxxerman, the Research Director of the Center for Studies of Leisure at the University of South Florida. He says that:

True education means a place and structure wherein one finds his own level, his own interests, and measures himself. It is an intimate search for the truth in the give and take of dialogue, allowing one's curiosity to flower, learning from one another. It means learning in the human community, dispersed, decentralized.

This is the kind of education which, I believe, VICI can provide superbly.

And so I salute you today as you join us, the institutions with walls and I remind you that you are in the stream of a fascinating educational tradition. Vermont can boast of many successes and many firsts, we were among the first of the states to establish programs in teacher education we can boast of Justin Morrill and his part in the establishing of land grant colleges, to mention just two. And we rejoice as you join us, our state university, our state colleges, our private colleges and our community college in the great diversity which, if properly maintained is our greatest strength. And as I look up at the sky and think of the incommensurate amount of time educators have to spend on the problem of leaking roofs, I hope you always keep the sky as your roof. If it leaks, at least, you won't have to worry that it is defective.

I close with the hope that you will synthesize these purposely disparate thoughts and add them to your own on this important subject of education.

As I close, I personally wish you well, Steward, and all your associates and pledge my interest in all your endeavors. As I thought of this opening day, it seemed to me that you would gain strength from the words spoken by William Faulkner at the time of the presentation of the Nobel Prize. Faulkner said:

I believe that the award was made to my life's work, not for glory and least of all for profit, but to create out of the materials of the human spirit something which did not exist before. I believe that man will not merely endure, he will prevail. He is immortal not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul, a spirit, capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance.

Sister Elizabeth Candon
President
Trinity College
Burlington, Vermont

Burlington College
Convocation
September 9, 2015

Schedule for Judith Orloff

- 9:00 – 9:30 a.m. Arrive at Burlington College
Meet with Executive Team
- 10:30 a.m. Interview, Taylor Dobbs, VPR
- 11:00 a.m. ?? Logan Crawford WCAX w/ Carol Moore
- 12:00 – 1:30 p.m. Convocation
Presentation from Judith: 12-15 minutes
Reception to follow
- 2:15 p.m. Trustee Meeting
- 2:30 p.m. Interview with Jesse Kreitzer, BC Film & Media Dept.
- 4:00 p.m. Faculty, Staff, Student reception

Convocation Speech for 2015 Burlington College

- Like most of you, I have always questioned what I was told. I was searching for truth and wanted to make a difference in all I do. So, I went on a search
- Moved to Village and worked at Revlon and an ad agency
- Moved back to Philadelphia and worked at Horizon House, halfway house for community based mental patients.
- While working in the Presidents office at University of Pa. Where I met Stuart LaCasce who was on a mission to create a college in Burlington, Vermont. He asked me to join him.
- Offered this incredible opportunity, to unleash my creativity with a few other like-minded individuals, like George Burrill and Greg Guma to create an alternative college. WOW.
- Uprooted my two children and with food stamps and 800.00 moved to South Burlington.
 - Stuart believed in the ideals of John Dewey, born in 1859 in Burlington Vermont. Steward believed that education would lead to the ultimate ethical ideal of humanity. We developed an educational structure that struck a balance of delivering knowledge while simultaneously teaching students to learn to use their gifts and talents for the greater good to create profound social change.

- With that in mind, it is not a surprise that the first class I taught was Male and Female in a Sexist Society, the students were prison guards, single moms, veterans and a few young alternative students searching for freedom.
- That was our beginning. Accreditation was always on our minds as well.

We are talking about 1972 and here we are in 2015. Four issues we faced then are still quite prevalent today.

Environmentalism:

- First earth day was 1970
- Inconvenient truth was 2010 – We still are in hot debate as to whether global warming is real.

Feminism

- Roe VS wade was passed by the Supreme Court in 1973
- Today, although the wage gap is lessening, issues such as rape culture, gender roles, and unrealistic body image are being confronted and open for discussion

LGBT

- Harvey Milk was elected to public office as mayor of San Francisco in 1977. Members of our school came out including Steward. Gay culture came into the public limelight
- Gay marriage was legalized in 2015, yet public elected officials are going to jail rather than issue licenses.
- Black Nationalist Movement grew out of frustrations with “non-violent strategies of earlier civil right’ Activists. And today we are face situations like Charleston and Ferguson and police being shot while getting gas or sitting in their vehicles. 60% of our prison population are African American males.
- Veterans made up the largest population of our college in the 70’s. Many students are veterans today and, today veterans are committing suicide at the rate of 22 per day.

Our mistakes:

Pounded on doors, blamed law enforcement, Wall Street, institutions were bad, etc. picketed. We couldn't be taken seriously.

We were coopted by people smarter than us. We became the corporations, the lawyers, the western physicians, the money people, etc.

The biggest mistake we made over all was we didn't gain self-awareness and then act. We didn't learn about ourselves. We didn't understand that we are all connected. We took extreme positions of right and wrong. We didn't have insight into ourselves, so we reluctantly joined those institutions and didn't know that we had those aspects within ourselves. We know that now.

We need what Debra Meyerson calls Tempered Radicalism. To be a tempered radical means being both an insider and outsider. It's about rocking the boat but not so hard that you fall out of it. It is a balancing act. Small changes through right action and a clear mind increase your sense of efficacy. This process begins with action rather than analysis.

Small actions, like the flap of butterfly wings or kindness can provoke change from many places within organizations. One small action at a time. One relationship at a time. One short moment of connection.

I would like to end by reading a bit by Pema Chodren in the commencement address she gave to the graduating class at Naropa in 2014.

Your Story

For over 25 years, Judith Orloff has dedicated her life to helping people transform their perspectives, allowing them to see through judgements, assumptions and the brilliantly constructed walls we build around ourselves. Doing so empowers us to make clearer decisions and create new possibilities for ourselves. She has worked with individuals, corporations, universities, and families, and her work continues to create meaning for participants long after the programs are complete.

Using her Six Principles of Emotional Literacy, Judith has developed a core learning methodology so fundamental that it has been used successfully in a diverse range of applications: strategic learning initiatives for Fortune 500 companies, aligning executive teams, healing family and individual trauma, and personal transformation. Radical Choices is the next stage in the evolution of Judith's teaching. As we move through a rapidly-changing world of technology and interconnectivity, our company seeks to address the needs and concerns of today's world through today's medium: smartphones and tablets.

Social Movements

Environmentalism had its origins in the 1970's with the first Earth Day being held on April 22, 1970.

2nd-wave feminist movement in the US took a prominent role within society, the Supreme Court's 1973 decision of Roe v. Wade that constitutionalized the right to an abortion brought the women's rights movement into the national political spotlight. The wage gap failed to close but progress was made in lessening the gap.

The gay movement made a huge step forward in the 1970s with the election of political figures such as Harvey Milk to public office and the advocating of anti-gay discrimination legislation passed and not passed during the decade. Many celebrities, including Freddie Mercury and Andy Warhol, also "came out" during this decade, bringing gay culture further into the limelight.

The Black Nationalist movement grew out of frustrations with the "non-violent" strategies of earlier Civil Rights Activists. With the assassinations of both Martin Luther King, Jr. and Senator Bobby Kennedy, many blacks were compelled to reject ideas of negotiation and instead embrace isolation. The feminist movement also splintered from a larger push for Civil Rights in the 1970s.

John Dewey

The overriding theme of Dewey's works was his profound belief in democracy, be it in politics, education or communication and journalism. As Dewey himself stated in 1888, while still at the University of Michigan, "Democracy and the one, ultimate, ethical ideal of humanity are to my mind synonymous."

The ideas of democracy and social reform are continually discussed in Dewey's writings on education. Dewey makes a strong case for the importance of education not only as a place to gain content knowledge, but also as a place to learn how to live. In his eyes, the purpose of education should not revolve around the acquisition of a pre-determined set of skills, but rather the realization of one's full potential and the ability to use those skills for the greater good.

"education is a regulation of the process of coming to share in the social consciousness; and that the adjustment of individual activity on the basis of this social consciousness is the only sure method of social reconstruction".

Dewey advocated for an educational structure that strikes a balance between delivering knowledge while also taking into account the interests and experiences of the student.

"the child and the curriculum are simply two limits which define a single process. Just as two points define a straight line, so the present standpoint of the child and the facts and truths of studies define instruction"

Children enter education with 4 innate impulses; To communicate, to construct, to inquire and to express in finer form.

Tempered Radical

"Tempered radicals" may not sound like the type to start revolutions or topple corrupt governments, but in the corporate world, it is often these quiet change advocates that get the ball rolling and policies changing".

It's being both an insider and an outsider, working to fit into what is currently acceptable and working to change norms of acceptability. It's about rocking the boat, but not so hard that you fall out of it. So tempered radicalism is in many ways a balancing act that gets expressed in a variety of ways.

Asserting the nonconforming aspects of oneself can pave the way for learning and change by questioning current practice and expectations and providing an alternative. ... When people act in ways that outwardly express a valued part of their selves, they make that part of their selves 'real.'

Another view sees organizations as organic and evolutionary, which means they are changing all the time. If we think of organizations that way, little nudges in the system can change the network of relationships, stimulate learning, and affect how work gets done. It means that small actions actually matter and that people can provoke change from many places within the organization.

When actions produce a concrete result, they increase a person's sense of efficacy, which in turn fuels new efforts and a different perspective on what constitutes an opportunity for making change. Success fuels involvement, and involvement fuels more action, and so on. The process begins, though, with action rather than analysis.

Convocation Speech for 2015 Burlington College

- Like most of you, I have always questioned what I was told. I was searching for truth and wanted to make a difference in all I do. So, I went on a search
- Moved to Village and worked at Revlon and an ad agency
- Moved back to Philadelphia and worked at Horizon House, halfway house for community based mental patients.
- While working in the Presidents office at University of Pa. Where I met Stuart LaCasce who was on a mission to create a college in Burlington, Vermont. He asked me to join him.
- Offered this incredible opportunity, to unleash my creativity with a few other like-minded individuals, like George Burrill and Greg Guma to create an alternative college. WOW.
- Uprooted my two children and with food stamps and 800.00 moved to South Burlington.
 - Stuart believed in the ideals of John Dewey, born in 1859 developed an educational structure that struck a balance of delivering knowledge while simultaneously teaching students to learn to use their gifts and talents for the greater good to create profound social change.

- With that in mind, it is not a surprise that the first class I taught was Male and Female in a Sexist Society, the students were prison guards, single moms, veterans and a few young alternative students searching for freedom.
- That was our beginning. Accreditation was always on our minds as well.

We are talking about 1972 and here we are in 2015. Four issues we faced then are still quite prevalent today.

Environmentalism:

- First earth day was 1970
- Inconvenient truth was 2010 – We still are in hot debate as to whether global warming is real.

Feminism

- Roe VS wade was passed by the Supreme Court in 1973
- Today, although the wage gap is lessening, issues such as rape culture, gender roles, and unrealistic body image are being confronted and open for discussion

LGBT

- Harvey Milk was elected to public office as mayor of San Francisco in 1977. Members of our school came out including Steward. Gay culture came into the public limelight
- Gay marriage was legalized in 2015, yet public elected officials are going to jail rather than issue licenses.
- Black Nationalist Movement grew out of frustrations with “non-violent strategies of earlier civil right’ Activists. And today we are face situations like Charleston and Ferguson and police being shot while getting gas or sitting in their vehicles. 60% of our prison population are African American males.
- Veterans made up the largest population of our college in the 70’s. Many students are veterans today and, today veterans are committing suicide at the rate of 22 per day.

Our mistakes:

Pounded on doors, blamed law enforcement, Wall Street, institutions were bad, etc. picketed. We couldn't be taken seriously. We were coopted by people smarter than us. We became the corporations, the lawyers, the western physicians, the money people, etc.

The biggest mistake we made over all was we didn't gain self-awareness and then act. We didn't learn about ourselves. We didn't understand that we are all connected. We took extreme positions of right and wrong. We didn't have insight into ourselves, so we reluctantly joined those institutions and didn't know that we had those aspects within ourselves. We know that now.

We need what Debra Meyerson calls Tempered Radicalism. To be a tempered radical means being both an insider and outsider. It's about rocking the boat but not so hard that you fall out of it. It is a balancing act. Small changes through right action and a clear mind increase your sense of efficacy. This process begins with action rather than analysis.

Small actions, like the flap of butterfly wings or kindness can provoke change from many places within organizations. One small action at a time. One relationship at a time. One short moment of connection.

I would like to end by reading a bit by Pema Chodren in the commencement address she gave to the graduating class at Naropa in 2014.

Peter Fenner
and Agyashanti

} Most influential

Werner ~~Alfred~~ Erhard
Buckminster Fuller
— Demming

} teachers

helped Japan figure out Toyota Way

EDUCATIONAL DISCOVERIES

February 27, 1992

Dr. W. Edwards Deming
4924 Butterworth Place
Washington, D.C. 20016

Dear Dr. Deming,

Your response to my letter opens my heart more than I imagined. I have already begun to reread your manuscript for The New Economics. I am giving considered and deep, creative thought to your invitation regarding the content of your four-day seminar that I recently attended in San Jose. My partner, Peg Doubleday, and I will plan to attend another one of the same with the explicit purpose of examining the specific areas where the application of our theory of transformation might be of benefit to the course.

As I contemplate why American business has not been able to truly understand and maintain the transformation your management system demands, I have some thoughts to share with you. I consider the Japanese mind as patient, used to cooperation and inwardly directed. The Japanese have a deep sense of family and the work place is experienced as an extension of that family where they can demonstrate their sense of order and loyalty. Whereas, the American consciousness tends to be competitive, approval oriented and outwardly directed. We tend to use fear and caution as a driving force for our decision making.

I believe that in order for American business to succeed in transforming our system of management, the leadership of each organization needs to demonstrate that people can change their beliefs about themselves and trust in each others' talents, skills and abilities. Workers need to be met with excitement, trust and openness, where management is willing to listen to each person's truth about the problems of the organization.

I just returned from a trip to Hawaii, where we have been consulting with Wilcox Memorial Hospital for the last year and a half. During that time, we have been working to transform the culture from competition and blame to one of personal responsibility. Our work was instituted in preparation for and as a complement to the implementation of your system of management. (The CEO and his administrative staff have been attending Quorum seminars as well as your own. And, as I mentioned in my first letter, John Dowd is beginning to bring your theory into the hospital itself.)

The CEO, housekeeping staff, nurses aides and dietary staff have been a pleasure to work with. Most of the employees, the "willing workers," have been open and vulnerable to new ideas. The executive level administrative staff, and many of the management staff on the other hand, tend to be threatened with the idea of Personal Responsibility and prefer to keep to their old paradigm while acting like they are changing paradigms.

We believe that this bind of form vs. essence that we are encountering at Wilcox is a key to why companies who try to implement your system are unable to accomplish the transformation that you are teaching. Do you think this is generally true? Have you found this to be a recurring theme?

One division of the hospital that is "transformed" in its approach to CQI is Long-Term Care. It is also the division that we have been working with the longest. In the division, there is openness, the workers are treated with respect and trust, teams are working to continually improve procedures and to solve problems on an ongoing basis and there is a growing experience of joy and aliveness. We attribute this to the fact that the director of Long Term Care is truly embracing the transformation to personal responsibility "whole heartedly."

I, also have a great desire to spend time with you. I would like to do so as soon as possible. I am pleased and happy at the thought. I look forward to talking with you soon.

With best wishes,

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "Judith", written in dark ink.

Judith Orloff-Falk

EDUCATIONAL DISCOVERIES

January 23, 1992

W. Edwards Deming
New York University
Sterns School of Business
Stat/Or Dept. 10th Floor
90 Trinity Pl.
New York, NY 10006

Dear Dr. Deming;

I attended your seminar in San Jose last week, on January 14-17. I was very happy to learn your information directly from you. I have attended other seminars based on your material and I did not experience the essence of your purpose as clearly as I did last week.

I consult with Wilcox Memorial Hospital in Kauai, Hawaii, as does John Dowd. My role there is to transform the culture through working with the executive team. My particular experience and skill focuses on the same issues as your points of Driving out Fear and Constancy of Purpose in an organization.

I often discover that people in leadership positions would rather maintain their point of view than achieve success. My work centers around creating an environment of safety so that leaders in an organization will learn to listen to what others are telling them. Many people are afraid to hear something that threatens their illusions. And, hearing you teach about the workers' need for joy and internal motivation in work speaks directly to my heart and my company's purpose.

I am enclosing a copy of a book that my partner and I wrote. We believe it teaches people how to have internal motivation and joy in their lives. I would deeply appreciate it if you would read a chapter or two of "Choices for Success," particularly the sections on The Model for Change and Sources of Information. If the work in this book aligns and agrees with your work I would like to know. We believe that it does.

We have not been able to find an American publisher for our book. They say that there are so many books on the market like ours, etc., etc. I think that because they do not really understand what we are saying, they miss the point. If we could include positive comments from you, I know we would be able to have it published in America.

We have another book in process on business leadership. We believe that this book supports and complements your information to an even greater extent. It is derived from our work with CEO's and executive teams on how to demonstrate what you call Constancy of Purpose and how to eliminate fear from the workplace.

I am also enclosing a copy of a letter I wrote about paradigm shifts in business, that was published in Human Resource Executive .

I would like an opportunity to spend time with you and share our mutual love for the work that we do. Please consider this. Thank you for your time and for your contribution to human joy.

With Best Wishes,

Judith Orloff-Falk

Judith Orloff-Falk
Vice President

Enclosures

Sent book business card

From: Alexa Cloud <amecloud@hotmail.com>
Subject: sorry - has to be more story-like fro the advertorial - please have a look/change
Date: April 5, 2011 7:14:29 PM MDT
To: Judith <judith@orlofflearning.com>, Rae Erkfritz <rae@orlofflearning.com>

This is more story-like - also please send the highest resolution pics you have for the "Judith blonde" photo and the Radical Love logo. Do you want me to cut this down to 150 words for the web listing?

Radical Love Training – Accessing Our True Nature

Judith Orloff, M.Ed., is a pioneer in transpersonal psychology and non-dual therapy. Over the last 35 years, her programs have explored the invisible world of intimacy, unconditional love and the non-dual to meet the people she works with in the deepest way. Now, in her latest unique experiential teaching, we can access a direct experience of relationship, with self and other, where we see the true nature in everything.

Radical Love is accessing our true nature in everyday life. We all want to be seen for our true nature, yet our energy is often caught up in our points of view and reactive states. Judith teaches, through attunement to Radical Love, how we can dissolve our reactions, relax our points of view yet retain our uniqueness, and to see through our false identities to our true selves. We learn to bring freedom and unconditioned love into the heart of our relationships. The Radical Love process goes beyond choice. We become “response-able” without effort or blame, at ease with our history, and able to give and receive openly.

Judith facilitates workshops, retreats and programs in the United States, Europe, Australia, and Israel. Her books include: Choices: Your Happiness in Your Own Hands, and The Power of the Living Letters – a Kabbalah Journey. She is presently co-founder of Radical Love Foundation. Programs: www.radicallovefoundation.com. Melbourne: 16–19 June 2011. (233 words)

Love Alexa

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "good". To the left of the word is a large checkmark, and below the word is a long, sweeping horizontal flourish.

Writing about
radical love

Proposed Conceptual Scheme for the Core Teachings of Radical Love

The Radical Love teachings give us an approach to our activity that leads us into the unconditioned through our conditioned reactive self.

Activities

Pure Inseeing (Just Own It) – We notice our blaming others and/or circumstances for our experience and switch to owning our experience. We start describing our experience in terms of what “I am feeling/thinking” rather than speculating about what “others” are doing to me. This taking of responsibility for our experience empowers us and frees us from a victim mentality. As we look closer at our experience we start to notice that our thoughts and feelings shift about and have no real substance to them. We start to become as free and open as the nondual space in which these thoughts/feelings are arising in awareness.

Pure Listening (Just Get It) – We notice how we react to what others present us. We notice our tendency to affirm or negate what is being offered. We then shift to just getting what is being shared without needing to identify with or reject it. We notice any pressure we feel to respond and allow ourselves to be with those feelings without acting on them. We become the open space of awareness neither resisting nor grasping at whatever is arising.

Pure Speaking (Just Share It) – We notice how we attempt to obscure and shade the truth in what we say and don’t say. We become aware of our discomfort with sharing the truth in a direct and clear way. We shift to speaking the truth rather than trying to manipulate the people with whom we are in communication. We find that we can share without imagining any need for separation between ourselves and others. This allows us to speak with integrity from the open space free of any personal agenda.

Pure Choosing (Just Choose It) – We notice our tendency to talk ourselves into our choices and our dependence on reasons to justify them. We notice our tendency to indecision and our discomfort with decisions based on picking one viewpoint over another. We acknowledge the competing reasons and viewpoints that arise when we are faced with a decision, but we don’t try to reach a conclusion through reasoning. Instead, we release our reasons and make our decision from the open space of nondual wisdom. We can then move beyond the choice point without the burden of the limited viewpoint that’s involved in a justification.

Pure Doing (Just Do It) – We notice how we disempower ourselves and others when we fail to keep our word. We acknowledge any discomfort or aversion that we experience in doing what is necessary to keep our word, but we keep it anyway. If we really can’t keep our word then we immediately acknowledge that fact openly and share it with those affected. This allows us to cooperate effectively with others and builds trust. We also find that when acting to fulfill our commitments we are acting from an open space without any need to like or dislike the activity.

Radical Love Foundation
www.Radicallovefoundation.org
Boulder, Colorado
303.415.0057

Radical Love Workshops with Judith Orloff, M.Ed.

Radical Love is the revitalizing, awareness that naturally permeates all relationships including the one with yourself. This includes partners, children, parents, family, friends, coworkers and the natural world. Radical Love is the foundational source of all that makes any relationship filled with life. It doesn't come and go like feelings, thoughts and experiences; it just is, like the sun, or the sky, whether a cloud cover or a clear day. No matter if you have ever walked a spiritual path, Radical Love is inclusive and contains all points of view.

Our program is interactive and experiential.

Some benefits of a Radical Love Workshop are:

- Being complete in each moment
- Being at peace with your history
- Relaxing in difficult conversations
- Dissolving problems, assumptions, interpretations and labels on the spot
- Remembering your natural ability to express and share yourself with ease and grace.
- Seeing through identities such as victim, caregiver, control freak, queen bee, and others.
- Experiencing love while in the midst of conflict.
- Giving and receiving without guile or agenda.
- Living beyond agreement and disagreement, approval and disapproval, right and wrong, while still taking appropriate action.
- Natural ethical behavior

Judith Orloff, M.Ed.
Executive Director
Radical Love Foundation
<http://www.radicallovefoundation.org>
303.415.0056
judith@radicallovefoundation.org

Radical Love, Relationship, and the Notion of Time

Radical Love is an expression of non-dual, unconditioned awareness always present in relationship. It provides flavor and texture to context, content, qualities and experiences. Radical Love is not separate from any point of view, is equal in expression and oneness, and is a clearing for instantaneous dissolution of separateness. What remains is that which is timeless and unchanging. Radical Love wisdom is a potent healing medicine for relationships.

When we are in afflictive, content based, relationship experiences, time is noticed in the foreground. Tiredness and fatigue may appear; desire for “this” to be over is prominent. In those states, time moves either quickly or slowly, positively or negatively. When accountability of our experience occurs, content dissolves, time does also, and defenseless intimacy and openhearted curiosity appear.

In this experiential presentation, we will explore Radical Love and the notion of time. We will investigate a process to access and share this wisdom with each other. Our group will be a clearing for this human experience to embody and dissolve constructs and contexts of being. We will receive each other with and without interpretation, which affects our experience of time. We may experience being response-able without effort or blame, at ease with our history, able to see through our relationship identities and give and receive without agenda or guile.

Judith Orloff, M.Ed.

Radical Love: A Non-Dual Approach to "Coupledom"

Radical Love is the non-dual, unconditioned awareness always present in relationship. Radical Love doesn't come and go like feelings, thoughts, experiences and sensations. It is the source energy of relationship, whether recognized or not. It is like the sun or the sky whether there is a cloud cover or a bright, clear day. Radical Love contains all points of view, all equal in expression and oneness, pointing the way to instantaneous dissolution of judgments, relaxation of interpretations, shattering of assumptions and identities except that which is authentic and infinite. Radical Love is potent healing medicine for all relationships,

In this two-hour experiential presentation, we demonstrate Radical Love through our relationship with each other. We experience the difference between our feelings and our reactive states and have the opportunity to dissolve historical reactive states that we have taken for granted or called a habit. In a beginning, when we meet someone we desire, we are our very best. As we live our every day life with our beloved, the very traits we "fell in love" with become the ones that seem to defy our ability to continue in our relationship. Eventually, we want that "in love" experience again. Sometimes, we try to recreate it with another person, to have the same blissful beginning. Yet, our reactive states continue to mix and match with our new partner until we recognize, and remember who and what we are. With this instinctive recognition of the non-dual, our loved one can then re-emerge as our soul mate through the very conflicts that have seemed un-resolvable.

We will investigate a process to access and share Radical Love wisdom, through defenseless intimacy and openhearted curiosity. The non-dual is our birthright and continually reveals our collective human experience.

The Radical Love process goes beyond choices. Rather, we become response-able without effort or blame, at ease with our history, able to see through our relationship identities, and give and receive without agenda or guile.

~~6hr. Workshops~~

~~Do Birds Fly, Do fish Swim?~~

- Relational Listening - No Spiritual Bypassing
- Getting Go Han / Integrity Game

Many believe that time ultimately doesn't exist
That past present and future are occurring simultaneously
Also, Our direct experience shows that to be basically true at different times we have the experience that we are in an eternal present. And at other times, our reactive states are so powerful that time moves very quickly or slowly depending on the nature of the affliction.

This geometrically expands in relationship, when two are as one in the timeless present, when are with our beloved, our partners, our friends, and access the timelessness of the present moment, our lives are experienced directly as full, energetic, blissful, creative, etc.

When we engage of point of view, and idea consciousness, in any relationship, including the one with ourselves, time becomes an ominous

We can't wait until we are alone and can meditate or free ourselves of this "reactive state"

This workshop we will have the direct experience of time "no time" and omnipresent time.

Please consider the environment before printing this mail note.

On Aug 4, 2010, at 7:57 PM, Judith Orloff wrote:

Dear Salina,

Thank you for your note. On thinking about it more I feel that it would be better that my work be presented through a session. It really needs an interactive format and connection with a group, rather than a poster. I hope that is possible. Could you let me know if that would work?

With appreciation,

Judith

Judith Orloff

www.orlofflearning.com

<http://www.kabbalahbookofchanges.com>

(M) 303 817 5653

(F) 303 415 0056

A mind that is not in a state of love, is not a (spiritual) mind at all.

Krishnamurti

Please consider the environment before printing this mail note.

On Aug 4, 2010, at 6:13 PM, Salina Storozuk wrote:

Dear Judith,

Congratulations!! Your abstract has been selected for a Poster Presentation at the Science and Nonduality Conference in San Rafael, California from Oct. 20-24th!

Prepare your presentation according to the guidelines found here:

http://scienceandnonduality.com/abstract_submission.shtml#poster

Please confirm your participation by replying directly to this email (salina@scienceandnonduality.com). Once you confirm your participation, we will be sending you information about the exact day and time of your presentation.

You can now sign back into your abstract submission account online, and register for the conference. As a presenter, you will be able to register at the early bird price of $295 for the entire conference using the coupon code: "poster"

Steps to register:

1. Sign back into your online registration by Entering your email address and clicking on "Already Registered?" from this page: <http://www.regonline.com/Checkin.asp?EventId=811259>

Judith Orloff, M.Ed.

Radical Love: A Non-Dual Approach to “Coupledom”

Radical Love is the non-dual, unconditioned awareness always present in relationship. Radical Love doesn't come and go like feelings, thoughts, experiences and sensations. It is the source energy of relationship, whether recognized or not. It is like the sun or the sky whether there is a cloud cover or a bright, clear day. Radical Love contains all points of view, all equal in expression and oneness, pointing the way to instantaneous dissolution of judgments, relaxation of interpretations, shattering of assumptions and identities except that which is authentic and infinite. Radical Love is potent healing medicine for all relationships,

In this two-hour experiential presentation, we demonstrate Radical Love through our relationship with each other. We experience the difference between our feelings and our reactive states and have the opportunity to dissolve historical reactive states that we have taken for granted or called a habit. In a beginning, when we meet someone we desire, we are our very best. As we live our every day life with our beloved, the very traits we “fell in love” with become the ones that seem to defy our ability to continue in our relationship. Eventually, we want that “in love” experience again. Sometimes, we try to recreate it with another person, to have the same blissful beginning. Yet, our reactive states continue to mix and match with our new partner until we recognize, and remember who and what we are. With this instinctive recognition of the non-dual, our loved one can then re-emerge as our soul mate through the very conflicts that have seemed un-resolvable.

We will investigate a process to access and share Radical Love wisdom, through defenseless intimacy and openhearted curiosity. The non-dual is our birthright and continually reveals our collective human experience.

The Radical Love process goes beyond choices. Rather, we become response-able without effort or blame, at ease with our history, able to see through our relationship identities, and give and receive without agenda or guile.

Dear Judith,

Hello, it was nice to speak with you on the phone today.

I have passed on your request to the organizers and they said they would ask the abstract committee to re-consider offering a speaking spot for you--it would be a 25 to 30 minute concurrent session, and you will be asked as we ask of all concurrent speakers to please register for the conference at the early bird rate of $295 (alternatively you can attend just the day of your talk for $140). They also liked your idea of a bribe! :)

You have already submitted an abstract, and I also passed on your digital flyer and sample MP3 of your course. However, it would be helpful if you revise your abstract a little, to specify how you will relate to the theme of the conference itself--specifically how your session presentation would pertain to either nonduality or science; a new, special title and some more specific descriptions of how you will point to the nondual state, as in the inner relationships you speak about, if there's any scientific evidence that you integrate in your talk, etc (those are only examples).

If you feel your current abstract is sufficient, that's fine too, but it might help to cater it a bit more to the audience that will come to this particular conference (as well as appeal to the abstract committee, as they do decide based on the written abstracts, and how they integrate into the conference theme).

Here is your current abstract we have on file

Radical Love

Judith Orloff <judith@orlofflearning.com> (Radical Love)

Radical Love is that which doesn't come or go; it just is, yet many of us do not know how to receive it.

Radical Love informs us that awareness is always present, yet appears hidden unless we live from unconditional forgiveness and love for all of the divine's handiwork including ourselves. This will be an interactive, experience-based program that will support you in being able to receive this natural blessing in all your relationships.

Please e-mail me directly a new version (300 words or less) if you'd like.

Thank you,
Salina

On Tue, Aug 10, 2010 at 6:12 AM, Judith Orloff <judith@orlofflearning.com> wrote:

Hi Salina,

I hope you received my last note. And, could you please let me know if I have been able to make a presentation through a session?

Thank you for your time.

With appreciation,

Judith

Judith Orloff

www.orlofflearning.com

<http://www.kabbalahbookofchanges.com>

(M) 303 817 5653

(F) 303 415 0056

A mind that is not in a state of love, is not a (spiritual) mind at all.

Krishnamurti

Judith Orloff, M.Ed, is a teacher and student of ancient wisdom, a spiritual guide, transpersonal psychologist, and author. For over 35 years, she has explored the invisible world of the non-dual, intimacy and unconditional love, to meet the people she works with in the deepest way. Judith applies the simplicity of everyday experiences to teach the deepest ineffable principles of relationship. She was a co-founder of Burlington College in the early 70's and created their Noo-genesis program, now a B.A. in Transpersonal Psychology. She has also taught at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Vermont. Judith was the founder of Choices, International and Educational Discoveries through which her work reached thousands of people in Natural Leadership, the Art and Science of Emotional Literacy and retreats and programs on awareness and love. Her books include, Choices, your Happiness in your Hands, The Kabbalah Book of Changes, and The Accounting Game. She has studied with Buckminster Fuller, Candace O'Denver, Peter Fenner, and many others throughout the years.

She is the co-founder of Radical Love Foundation whose mission is to end child abuse, starting with ourselves. Radical Love Foundation supports individuals, couples, and organizations committed to peaceful solutions to seemingly untenable situations You dissolve your judgments, relax your interpretations, check out your assumptions and let yourself be. We know you are naturally perfect just as you are without attempting to be "a better person." One reaction at a time. One moment at a time. One child at a time. She presently lives in Boulder, Colorado

Objections

How do you feel when you hear an objection?

How do you feel when a prospect raises an objection?

How do you know it's a real objection?

Reaction: What is it?

Reactions are a cover-up. They protect our true feelings and experience. But, reactions are gold mines!

A reaction is a wonderful opportunity for freedom. It's a key to something you do that keeps you from being the present moment, so you can have what you want. If you stay open to learning while in reaction, you can choose a different behavior right in the middle of it. This changes the pattern.

How can you tell if you are "in reaction"?

A reaction does not have to look a certain way. In fact, it will not. Since it is a learned behavior based on our individual interpretations of how we were supposed to be in our families, a reaction manifests itself differently for everyone. But here are some unmistakable clues. You may be "in reaction":

- * when your body feels tight and anxious, not present;
- * whenever you think that what you feel is about someone else;
- * when your mind will not shut up;
- * when your thoughts relate to the past or the future, not the present;
- * when you are hiding or numb, feeling foggy or confused;
- * whenever there is a judgment (good or bad);
- * whenever you feel compelled to act or not act;
- * whenever you have accumulated good evidence and can prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that you are right;
- * when events appear to be coming at you – you feel like a victim, a victimizer, and a judge all at the same time.

Reactions are Goldmines

A reaction is a creative cover-up learned to obfuscate and convolute our unadulterated experience. It is an acceptable response we learned while very young. Now, when we begin to feel those feelings, we automatically experience the same cover up, even though there is no story.

How Do You Know What Is A Reaction and What Is a Feeling?

You know you are in a reaction when there is a value judgment on what you are feeling (for example, greed, or fear, or lust, or need or yearning).

Here are some clues that you are "in reaction":

- Your body feels tight and anxious.
- Events appear to be coming at you from outside – you may feel like a victim and a judge all at the same time.
- You usually think what you feel is about or because of someone else.
- You feel compelled to act or not act.
- You think other people are doing something to you or you to them.
- You think you can hurt, help, or change someone's experience including your own.
- Your thoughts relate to the past or the future, not the present.

These are four steps you can use to temporarily diffuse a knee –jerk reaction and act in a responsible way.

1. Stop – Stop what you are doing for a minute. (Take a breath, relax for a moment.)
2. Look – Look at what you are feeling. (The answer will only be about you; i.e. I want to win this argument; I want to be right.)
3. Listen – Tell yourself the truth. You already know!
4. Act – What do you really want to happen? (The "right" action that is called on now.)

Practicum Principles

Conditioned Response

Attempting to fix or correct someone, or have anyone or anything be different

Repeating stories from the past, discussing abstract concepts or theories, or self-referencing and taking sides

Protecting our image and stories, and reserving ourselves out of fear

Making excuses to abandon commitments that we find difficult or burdensome

Seeking ways to feel good about others or ourselves

Giving advice, correcting, or attempting to prove a point

What We Practice

Personal Response-Ability

Being with what is and allowing everyone to have his or her own experience

Sharing Direct Experience

Sharing what is arising in the moment, without an agenda

Knowing Ourselves

Being willing to have our identity ruffled, knowing that we are all equal in our emotional capability

Honoring Our Word

Honoring our commitments no matter what we feel or think

Being Authentic

Being willing to feel the full extent of our emotions, including discomfort, anger, pain, and happiness

Applying Skillful Means

Giving and receiving feedback for the benefit of all and without an agenda or judgment

1910
1/11

“Do not believe in anything simply because you have heard it. Do not believe in anything simply because it is spoken and rumored by many. Do not believe in anything simply because it is found written in your religious books. Do not believe in anything merely on the authority of your teachers and elders. Do not believe in traditions because they have been handed down for many generations. But after observation and analysis, when you find that anything agrees with reason and is conducive to the good and benefit of one and all, then accept it and live up to it.”

- Buddha

Radical love

ONE MOMENT AT A TIME . ONE RELATIONSHIP AT A TIME . ALWAYS FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL

Purpose, Vision and Mission Statement

Our Purpose: Clarity for the benefit of all.

Our Vision: A world transformed through awakened relationships and natural leadership.

Our Mission: To disseminate our principles and teachings to as many people as possible. We partner with established organizations, businesses and schools, families and individuals committed to clarity for the benefit of all. We do this through classes, coaching, programs and a practicing community of like-minded people. We provide live presentations, video, audio and written teachings.

Our culture is transparent and congruent. The work we share with the world is the work we live by. We foster a culture of authenticity in all we do and say. It is important that we approach every moment and every relationship in the full expression of who we are. We are committed to sharing clarity with fierce compassion and kindness.

Our guiding principles are how we live our purpose, vision and mission. We have six guiding principles, which are:

- Personal Response-Ability
- Sharing Direct Experience
- Knowing Ourselves
- Honoring Our Word
- Being Authentic
- Applying Skillful Means

Radical Love opens opportunities to live open-heartedly; we believe awakened relationships and natural leadership are the building blocks for freedom and peace in our world. Our organization and our community are diverse and curious and want to make a difference in the world. Together we can.

948 North Street Suite 4 Boulder Colorado 80304 USA
www.radicallovefoundation.org
office@radicallovefoundation.org
+1 303.415.0056

v10Jul13

Judith Orloff, M.Ed.

Radical Love: A Non-Dual Approach to “Coupledom”

Radical Love is the non-dual, unconditioned awareness always present in relationship. Radical Love doesn't come and go like feelings, thoughts, experiences and sensations. It is the source energy of relationship, whether recognized or not. It is like the sun or the sky whether there is a cloud cover or a bright, clear day. Radical Love contains all points of view, all equal in expression and oneness, pointing the way to instantaneous dissolution of judgments, relaxation of interpretations, shattering of assumptions and identities except that which is authentic and infinite. Radical Love is potent healing medicine for all relationships,

In this two-hour experiential presentation, we demonstrate Radical Love through our relationship with each other. We experience the difference between our feelings and our reactive states and have the opportunity to dissolve historical reactive states that we have taken for granted or called a habit. In a beginning, when we meet someone we desire, we are our very best. As we live our every day life with our beloved, the very traits we “fell in love” with become the ones that seem to defy our ability to continue in our relationship. Eventually, we want that “in love” experience again. Sometimes, we try to recreate it with another person, to have the same blissful beginning. Yet, our reactive states continue to mix and match with our new partner until we recognize, and remember who and what we are. With this instinctive recognition of the non-dual, our loved one can then re-emerge as our soul mate through the very conflicts that have seemed un-resolvable.

We will investigate a process to access and share Radical Love wisdom, through defenseless intimacy and openhearted curiosity. The non-dual is our birthright and continually reveals our collective human experience.

The Radical Love process goes beyond choices. Rather, we become response-able without effort or blame, at ease with our history, able to see through our relationship identities, and give and receive without agenda or guile.

Taste – we are more successful if you want to go forward in experiencing the nondual in their life. Not separating the conditioned and the unconditioned.

The Nature of Conditioning – the human experience

- Reactive States
 - Materials
 - What is a Reaction
- Family Conditioning
- How does their conditioning effect their relationships
 - What are the patterns that they and their significant others come up with (greater or lesser degree with children)
 - 5 minute Radical Love description of conditioning
 - exercise that bring them up against what their patterns
 - 5 people groups/ game
 - 1 person be observer take notes, while other 4 doing exercise
 - sheet of paper with columns
 - move it around
 - look at patterns that come up.
 - Anger, being right etc - What conditioning pattern is strongest in group.
 - Flip chart
 - Pick top patterns, look at specific conditioning

The Nature of the Unconditioned - the human experience

- What is the unconditioned, where is it?
- Here we are, this is it... (credit peter)
 - We know what issues in relationship, and we know what the unconditioned is, how do we put it together
 - Poems from RL
- Demonstrate in 2nd hour is the issue about them, that they can authentically share that with the whole group
 - Judith- Not being heard, judging the partners for being shallow. – find my shallowness

Receiving What Is – the metaphysics of beneficial relationship

- Listening and Speaking materials.
- Pure Listening exercise.
- (exercise Synergy – demonstrate listening and being heard)
 -

Experiencing What Is - the practical metaphysics of natural authenticity in relationship

- Defenseless intimacy

Free Choice

- Experience through demonstration of a free choice
- Integrity – keeping your word

Coming Home – making a difference

Pattern to creating a Program

- Intro
- Presenting a theory, having people respond to theory
- Demonstrating
- Debriefing

1.5 is top limit to taking a break (50 mins top)

Melissa's role

- Working with all the groups
- Starting trouble
- Stirring the pot
- Make sure observer is really observing
- Helping in demonstrating
-

Rae

Need a bell

Dress code for dinner- look there- what is general dress code there

Prepare-

- How do we find out the number of people in workshop
- How much material do we need?
- Look up email for schedule
- Create Radical Love Tri-Fold or flyer

Additional content from RL/ETP/NL transcripts:

Authenticity

Authentic Relationship is the result of Radical Intimacy and profoundly connects the core of our being with another, and directly recognizes oneness in relationship. You do not need to agree with, or feel good about your partner at any given time. It simply means that you are willing to, as Martin Buber says, “turn toward the other.”

Steps to Authenticity – A Direct Path to Infinite Possibilities Now!

Share the simple truth of your direct experience.

Allow your own experience, just as it is.

Give what you are asking for.

Become love, the lover, and the beloved.

We all have the ability to be authentic. When we are right here, we make this choice at every moment – without thinking about the past, the future, about what we might have done, or should have done. The more we are in the “present,” the more options we have available to us.

You may think you are totally in control of your behavior. We all have responses that feel preprogrammed at times. We may have feelings about what is happening around us that come from experiences we’ve had in the past, but we don’t have to act on these feelings.

In order to be authentic, it is critical to examine the conditioned patterns that exist in our lives that cause us to react in any particular way, to a variety of situations. If not we will re-create our family dynamics without being conscious of it.

EQUALITY: Ability to accept all of life’s experiences equally, whether we feel happy or sad, fearful or joyful, angry or loving.

Additional Radical Love Content from various transcripts:

1. Isn't it time to see all sides and to not have anything be difficult to speak to. To have everything be open to speak to so that we have real freedom with the sense of responsibility of how we're saying it. Not just blurt things out but really be accountable for what we're saying so that we don't think about anything afterwards and we can sleep at night.
2. Everything or anything that someone else might say is o.k. for consideration, there is no need to defend or explain yourself, there is no need to rationalize yourself. You do not have to be right and you act with open hearted vulnerability.

GENERALIZED PRINCIPLES OF 'BEING AUTHENTIC':

1. Share what's true.
 2. You can't just declare a new relationship.
 3. Deal with the effects of your behavior on the other person.
 4. Behave in ways that support the highest good.
- Once we are not bound to repetition and loyalty to our patterns, we can live authentically in all our relationships
 - We can tolerate the discomfort that may arise from openhearted vulnerability
 - When we feel hurt or angry we can still honor our word
 - Vulnerability is our greatest strength.

MAKING A FREE CHOICE:

- Consider all Options
- Look from arising perspectives
- Experience all sides
- Remember, no perspective is independent
- Remember all are equal
- Consider ethics and morals
- Sit in silence
- Make a Free Choice no matter what the situation.
- Feel the result

Unconditioned Awareness

The unconditioned, what some people call God, what we're calling Radical Love space, never changes, has no qualities to it. It's nothing... everything arises out of it... what we call evil, what we call good, what we call negative and positive. It all arises from the same source.

Within Nothingness there is a Road -Wumen Huaiki

Image: the Tree & the Roots

- The form and the formless at the same time
- The roots are growing down, bending and twisting all the parts
- The roots go down to no words, no nothing!
- The nothing at the root colors everything.

Unconditioned awareness is the ground of all that we are:

- Of all of what we are
- Family systems are our conditioned landscape
- Our unconditioned awareness informs the landscape

Radical Love is where the conditioned and unconditioned come together

- The conditioned and unconditioned: only there do we meet
- Peter Fenner: "The Ultimate Medicine."
- Judith Orloff: "Radical Medicine"

Our conditioned landscape is informed by nothing

- The concept of 'nothing' is a concept
- Nothing is nothing
- It is clear space
- Judith: "I am clear!"

That space of nothing is where everyone meets

- There is no separation
- We are not separate beings!
- There is only one
- We are all one AND we are unique!

From the space of nothing you can see exactly what is happening:

- Nothing sticks!
- There is no comment
- There is no judgment
- There are no exclusions
- There are no opinions

This is the clear space of Radical Love

- Where the non-dual permeates everything
- It's not separate
- We can have this and be in the dual world at the same time
- Judith: "I don't know what to do when I get to nothing!"

This Second Program is about how to be here now and have curiosity to know more:

- to look inside and find out where the light doesn't shine inside of us
- to bring Light to our dark areas: Judith's experience of not trusting her body, thinking she's going to die when there's a pain v. Melissa's narrative that she is going to "live forever" and Melissa's dark spot related to money.)
- Suggested book topic: Judith's transformational path from fear of death to health and trusting her body, a journey seen through the eyes of all the emergency rooms in the world!

Discovery in the workshop:

- see where we have darkness, where we have energy, where we are bound
- Asking questions directly brings light to the darkness of our reactions
- Asking a question will illuminate the darkness of our family systems

Reactions are a way that we freeze:

- Reactions cause us to freeze

- How we freeze has a flavor, a taste to it and an effect
- The way we freeze causes others to treat us in a certain way

Each family system is a Narrative: our narrative comes out of our family conditioning and is not the truth.

ACTIVITY: each person writes their own narrative and that narrative leads to exploration about how we live our lives

- We are going to find out something more about ourselves: how we see is based on our family conditioning
- Our narrative will lead to more wisdom about how we can come out of our family system(s) and change our conditioning

It's about reaching inside ourselves.

- And speaking to the unspoken... with clarity... simply!

We can see the whole from unconditioned awareness

- We see the part from our conditioning
- We see the whole from nothing
- We only see the part because of our family system
- Wholeness includes the shadow: going from the darkness to the light (neither & both)

Experience and know the emptiness of unconditioned awareness

- The emptiness allows for your conditioning to be transformed, and to create transformation in all areas of your life
- For you to not be in it: then you will be able to do it everywhere with everything in our life!

Archetype Activity: Session on "Hurt & Family Feelings"

- Develop Archetypes for our human feelings
- The Human Things - where people share and embody the present moment v. the past
- Design session to schedule & ideas to be generated

- What is an archetype, from Wikipedia:

An archetype (🔊[ⓘ] /ˈɑrktaɪp/) is a universally understood symbol, term,^[1] statement, or pattern of behavior, a prototype upon which others are copied, patterned, or emulated. Archetypes are often used in myths and storytelling across different cultures. In psychology, an archetype is a model of a person, personality, or behavior.

In philosophy, archetypes have, since Plato, referred to as ideal forms of the perceived or sensible objects or types. Archetypes are likewise supposed to have been present in folklore and literature for thousands of years, including prehistoric artwork. The use of archetypes to illuminate personality and literature was advanced by Carl Jung early in the 20th century, who suggested the existence of universal countless forms that channel experiences and emotions, resulting in recognizable and typical patterns of behavior with certain probable outcomes. Archetypes are cited as important to both ancient mythology and modern narratives.

Jung outlined five main archetypes:

- The Self, the regulating center of the psyche and facilitator of individuation,
- The Shadow, the opposite of the ego image, often containing qualities with which the ego does not identify, but which it possesses nonetheless,
- The Anima, the feminine image in a man's psyche, or
- The Animus, the masculine image in a woman's psyche,
- The Persona, the image we present to the world, usually protecting the Ego from negative images (like a mask), and considered another of 'the sub-personalities, the complexes'.^[9]

Although archetypes can take on innumerable forms, there are a few particularly notable, recurring archetypal images^{[ⓘ]^[Ⓘ]}

- | | |
|---|--|
| • The Child | • The Damsel in distress |
| • The Hero | • The Trickster or Fox |
| • The Martyr | • The Devil or Satan |
| • The Great Mother | • The Scarecrow |
| • The Wise old man or Sage | • The Mentor |
| • The Wise Old Woman/Man , archetypes of the collective unconscious | • The Warrior |

Jung also outlined what he called archetypes of transformation, which are situations, places, ways, and means that symbolize the transformation in question. These archetypes exist primarily as energy and are useful in organizational development, personal and organizational change management, and extensively used in branding.

Judith Orloff, M.Ed.
Co-Founder, Radical Love Foundation
judith@radicallovefoundation.org
www.radicallovefoundation.org
Tel.: +1.303.415.0056

Judith is a teacher and student of wisdom traditions, a guide to an awakened life, a transpersonal psychotherapist, author, speaker, and friend, loving partner, mother and grandmother. She is committed to clarity and peaceful solutions to seemingly untenable situations for the benefit of all. For the past forty years she has explored the invisible world of intimacy and unconditioned awareness, studying and integrating the work and transmissions of Peter Fenner, Rabbi Yehuda Shemtov, Werner Erhard, Marshall Thurber, Adyashanti, Candice O'Denver, as well as W. Edwards Deming, Buckminster Fuller, R. D. Laing, Jay Haley, Martin Seligman, Salvador Minuchin and other Masters.

Judith teaches how to bring the clarity of the non-dual into the simplicity and practical situations of everyday life. She is a Co-Founder of the Radical Love Foundation, which has a vision of a world transformed through awakened relationships and natural leadership. Radical Love programs for individuals, couples, families, and organizations offer direct access to, and relief from, the suffering of our conditioned patterns.

Her books include: Choices – Your Happiness in Your Own Hands; The Accounting Game; The Top Performer's Guide to Leadership – Essential Skills that Put You on Top; The Power of the Sacred Living Letters – The Kabbalah Book of Change; and Starfish, in Fearless Nest – Our Children as Our Greatest Teachers, edited by Shana Parker.

Professional Experience

- Co-Founder and CEO of the Radical Love Foundation, Boulder, Colorado. The Foundation offers an educational model of Awakened Relationships and Natural Leadership for couples and individuals, families, organizations and governments.
- President of Orloff Learning and Real Impact Learning, headquartered in Boulder, Colorado. They offered coaching, and personal growth programs to individuals, and leadership programs to entrepreneurs and organizations.

Melissa Stuart, M.A. (Expressive Art Therapy)
Co-Founder, Radical Love Foundation
melissa@radicallovefoundation.org
www.radicallovefoundation.org
Tel.: +1.303.415.0056

Melissa is President of the Board of the Radical Love Foundation, a Radical Love facilitator, teacher, an artist, art therapist and philanthropist. She continues the legacy of her grandfather, who stood for freedom of speech (R.C. Hoiles, founder of Freedom Newspapers) and this is manifested in her living and sharing the principles of Radical Love: open-hearted communication and clarity, always for the benefit of all. Melissa has been influenced by many teachers: Ben Colodzin, John Rogers, Eckhart Tolle, Chögyam Trungpa Rinpoche, Candice O'Denver, Adyashanti, Peter Fenner and Judith Orloff (M.Ed.). Her studies in Catholicism, Buddhism and the Non-dual have all led her to what she considers the most basic and transformative "way of being" in daily life: Radical Love.

Melissa started working with Judith Orloff in 2008, and in 2010, they co-founded the Radical Love Foundation. Radical Love works with the simplicity of everyday life experiences to teach the deepest principles. Melissa facilitates groups with people from many walks of life to access their natural leadership, and to transform their lives through awakened relationships.

Education and Professional Experience

Leadership and Philanthropy

- Radical Love Foundation – President and Foundational donor
- Boulder Community Foundation and Boulder Institute – Donor
- Bainbridge Graduate Institute – Foundational donor
- Freedom Newspapers – Member of Family Council

THE FUTURE OF EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

R A D I C A L
Love
F O U N D A T I O N

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

- This presentation is a series of ideas that describes our thinking about leadership development and executive coaching.
- Much of this thinking has developed over the past years from relationships with Bank of America, Fleet BankBoston, Midas, Johnson & Johnson and many other Fortune 500 executives and teams, as well as partnership with other CEOs.

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

Radical Love's View of the Present State of Leadership Education

- “Shadow of the leader” may be ignored or misunderstood
- Projection and judgment are presented as truth and reality
- Competencies are linear and “stove piped”, not synergistic
- Thinking is conditioned and seemingly rational and logical

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

Radical Love's View of the Present State of Leadership Education

- Change is approached incrementally with fear and trepidation
- Compartmentalizing, such as business and personal life, emotions and thoughts, failure and success
- Action takes place from desire or need (internal or external)

RADICAL
Love
FOUNDATION

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

Why is it that way?

- Discomfort with being held responsible without being empowered
- Unwillingness to accept that we are the source of our experience
- Inadequate methodology and efficacy of feedback
- Focus on output versus outcome
- Guilt over life imbalances
- Lack of alignment and synergy
- People connected cognitively and physically, not emotionally or spiritually

RADICAL
Love
FOUNDATION

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

Why is it that way?

- Confusion about the meaning of responsibility compared with blame, and order compared with chaos
- Emotional intelligence not easily learned or modeled
- Emotions control decision making
- Belief that time is a controlling factor
- Bottom line results are not connected with strategy and current reality
- Wanting to “know” and “be right” rather than having curiosity

Radical Love Foundation

- Authentic Relationships and Natural Leadership competencies
- An awareness of the effect of believing thoughts, feelings and behavior
- An environment where authentic relationships thrive
- A culture in which our humanness is seen as a source of joy
- Collaboration, networking and synergy as natural results of clarity

RADICAL
Love
FOUNDATION

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

Radical Love Foundation

- Hidden information becomes transparent and apparent
- Community connection valued and rewarded
- Implementation of innovation an evolutionary imperative
- Risk taking and change as status quo
- Emotional literacy skills as important as reading
- Action informed by clarity and open intelligence

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

What can you expect?

- Clarity deeply understood and modeled
- Experiential learning – work has essential personal and global value and meaning
- See through story to core capabilities and true narrative
- Emotional literacy, Radical Listening and Speaking as mainstays
- Personal purpose and vision as aspects of organizational purpose and vision

R A D I C A L
Love
F O U N D A T I O N

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013

What can you expect?

- Clear guiding principles and competencies
- Understand boundaries – what they are and what they are not
- Speak the unspeakable with Skillful Means
- Assume intimacy naturally
- Reveal and support clarity

One moment at a time,
One relationship at a time,
Always for the benefit of all

© Radical Love Foundation 2013