

take the basic tenants of emotional intelligence, uh, and you take a look at what those competencies can do in terms of productivity, safety, um, good management, I can't imagine any industry that wouldn't benefit from it. None.

Q: Have we overlooked anything?
(OFFSTAGE)

Q: Why would this world be a better place if more of us were in touch with our emotions?

JO: I've always had a secret agenda in my work. Um, it's just been there since I've been-- since I began to, to think about work and that is to end child abuse. And I think that if everyone in this world were aware of their emotions and knew what they were feeling, we would end child abuse. We might even end other serious problems we have in the world, because people would know what was going on and they wouldn't be acting out of the-their past. They wouldn't be acting out of their history. They'd be acting in the moment. And so children would be loved totally, and people would be treated equally. Uh, so, you know, I think everyone could use emotional intelligence. That would certainly help my agenda. I mean it would certainly help my personal agenda.

Q: Thank you very much.
END INTERVIEW

Conditioning's last
Stand - INTEGRITY