

Choices Personal
discovery Form

Choirs 1920-1921

1920-1921

The Choices Weekend

PERSONAL DISCOVERY FORM

Dear Participants:

It is our experience that answering these questions will begin the workshop for you. Please give yourself permission to feel whatever you feel while you are filling out this form. We look forward to getting to know you.

Name: _____ Sex: _____ Age: _____

Religion you were raised in: _____ Religion now: _____

Where were you born? State _____ Country _____

In what facility? Hospital _____ Home _____ Other (explain) _____

Were you: Wanted? _____ Planned? _____ By both parents? _____

If not, why? _____

If you have siblings, how many are older? _____ younger? _____

Were there any miscarriages or fetal deaths before you? If so, please explain.

What did your parents or others tell you about your gestation? (time in the womb) _____

Any complications? _____

Do you know anything about the labor? _____

Was your birth normal? _____

Were you:

_____ A twin
_____ Premature
_____ Late
_____ Forcepped
_____ Anesthetized

_____ Breech
_____ Born with cord around neck
_____ Caesarean
_____ Induced
_____ Other

Did your mother have any specific problem with your birth?

_____ Hemorrhage
_____ Infection

_____ Post partum depression
_____ Other

Was your father present at your birth? _____ If not, where was he?

Did your parents want a boy or a girl? _____

Were you breast fed? _____ If not, why not? _____

Did you have any illnesses during your infancy? If yes, please explain.

Did you have any illnesses in later childhood? If yes, please explain.

Did you have any accidents or injuries as a child? If yes, please explain.

Did you have any major emotional traumas as a child? If yes, please explain.

Were there any deaths in your family while you were growing up? If yes, who?

Did your parents divorce? If so, what age were you and which parent did you live with?

How would you describe yourself as a child? _____

Describe your mother (beginning with what you did not like about her).

Describe your father (beginning with what you did not like about him).

How would you describe their relationship while you were growing up?

Any important comments about any other substitute parent, step-parent, grandparent, or people who took care of you?

Are you now married? _____ Living with someone? _____

Describe your mate _____

For women only:

When did you begin to menstruate? _____

Have you gone through menopause? _____

If you currently menstruate, how often and for how long? _____

When did you first have sex? _____

How many times have you been pregnant? _____

How many deliveries? _____

Any problems with those births or children? If yes, please describe. _____

Have you had any miscarriages? _____ If yes, how many? _____

Have you had any abortions? _____ If yes, how many? _____

Have you given any children away? _____ If yes, how many? _____

How do you feel about sex? _____

For men only:

When did you first have sex? _____

How many times has a partner been pregnant? _____

How many deliveries? _____

Any problems with those births or children? If yes, please describe. _____

Has your partner had any miscarriages? If yes, how many? _____

Has your partner had any abortions? If yes, how many? _____

Have you given any children away? If yes, how many? _____

How do you feel about sex? _____

Please describe any personal upsets that you are currently experiencing.

Please list all current illnesses. Include skin disorders, sores, infections, colds, ulcers, tensions, pain, etc. _____

Please mention all current injuries including the affected body part.

What physical treatments or examinations have you undergone within the last year? _____

Are you currently on any medication? If so, what is it, and what is it for?

Are you presently or have you recently been under medical or psychiatric care?

Have you any current medical problems we should know about? If yes, please describe. _____

Are you allergic to any food or medications? If yes, please describe.

Have you had surgery within the past year? If yes, please describe.

Is there any reason why you couldn't participate in a late evening session? If so, please explain. _____

What are your desires? _____

What are your major fears? _____

What are your relationships like with your family and friends? _____

How do you feel about men? _____

How do you feel about women? _____

What is your most negative thought about yourself?

What is your most positive thought about yourself?

What is your most negative thought about life?

What is your most positive thought about life?

What is your most negative thought about relationships?

What is your most positive thought about relationships?

What seminars and workshops have you done?

Please tell us who to notify in an emergency:

Name: _____

Phone numbers: Home: _____ Work: _____

Relationship: _____

Your name: _____

Address: _____

Phone number: _____

Insurance coverage, if any: _____

Signature _____ Date _____

Thank you. Please bring this form to the Weekend.

Radical Choices
Disruptive learning
technology

1921.07.21 1921.07.21
1921.07.21 1921.07.21
1921.07.21 1921.07.21

Radical Choices

Leadership in Recovery Using Disruptive Learning Technology™ Participant Workbook Day Two

Table of Contents

1. DLT Feedback: Key to Success	3
2. The Reactive Self	4
2.1. The Reactive Self – How to Recognize It	4
3. Personal Responsibility	5
3.1. Application Activity: Personal Responsibility Scene Study - One More Feeling	5
4. Reactions as Pitfalls: Judgment, Interpretation, Projection	6
4.1. Judgment	6
4.2. Interpretation	6
4.3. Projection	6
5. How to Dissolve Reaction	7
6. Authenticity	8
6.1. You Always Communicate Your Intention	8
7. Integrity	9
7.1. Lack of Integrity Application Exercise: Cleaning Up The Mess	9
8. Six Principles of DLT	10
8.1. Insight	10
8.2. Personal Responsibility	10
8.3. Authenticity	10
8.4. Integrity	10
8.5. Clear Mind	10
8.6. Awakened Action	10

1. DLT Feedback: Key to Success

Being able to give and receive feedback is extremely important in this training. How else can we see our blind spots unless people we trust help us?

2. The Reactive Self

A reaction is when you respond to the present situation from the past.

When we are “in reaction,” our responses are coming from automatic pilot, from our past, from all the ways we learned to act in childhood when our feelings and thoughts were not okay with the people around us.

So, what is so important about our Reactive Self? We have an old response to something—so what? We think we are feeling one thing and are really feeling something else—what difference does it make? We blame somebody or something for what we are feeling—is this so unusual?

No, most of us blame someone or something for what we are feeling. Many of us are not aware of what we are feeling, and most of us respond to what happens in the present the way we did ten, twenty or thirty years ago. There’s nothing “wrong” or “bad” with any of it. Yet, this behavior keeps us at a disadvantage.. We end up perpetuating old patterns that prevent us from achieving our present day goals.

Dissolving our Reactive Selves always involves telling ourselves something we don’t want to hear.

2.1. The Reactive Self – How to Recognize It

There are several ways, then, you can tell when you are in reaction:

- When your body language is rigid (you cover your eyes, or face, or fold your arms)
- When your comments are irrelevant to what is being discussed
- When your affect is numb, foggy, confused or angry
- When you make judgments rather than thought out feedback and evaluation.
- Whenever you are compelled to act or not act
- When you act as if you are in a courtroom, presenting good evidence and prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that you are right about your point of view.
- When you want to argue, find fault, want to make everything okay.

3. Personal Responsibility

To some, the word “responsibility” may connote “doing the right thing” or bearing the “burden” of responsibility.

In the context of DLT, to be personally responsible is defined as “response-ability.” Being Personally Responsible means, literally, being able to respond. It means people choose the behavior that will get their desired results, rather than the behavior dictated by their feelings. This also means acknowledging oneself as the source of their feelings and results. Thus, the leader can consciously choose how to respond to any situation instead of being stuck with patterned responses from the past.

Now, how can you be personally responsible?

- Assuming positive intent on the part of others. Even if you can prove the opposite.
- Being in the present rather than in the past
- Acting in a way that promotes getting the results we desire
- Choosing not to defend, blame, justify, or judge

3.1. Application Activity: Personal Responsibility Scene Study - One More Feeling

Scene One: The Client is Always Right

The Characters: A recovery facility counselor and two clients in a CBT group.

The Situation: The group has broken up into pairs to discuss what event precipitated them coming to the facility. The instructions are to share their story of addiction and what has worked and not worked for them in recovery.

Scene Two: Let Go and Let God

Characters: A recovery facility counselor and two clients.

Situation: A facility counselor is conducting a sober living exit training to two clients about to leave the rehab facility

Scene Three: The Legend of Filial Piety

The Characters: A recovery facility counselor, a teenage client and her mother

The Situation: The counselor has just offered a fairly complicated piece of theory on the roots of addiction and neither the client or her mother are responding in any recognizable way.

4. Reactions as Pitfalls: Judgment, Interpretation, Projection

4.1. Judgment

When you make a judgment, it is always about you, not the other person. Our judgments stem from something inside ourselves. How many of us judge ourselves?

Judgments always attribute negative or positive motivation. When we judge we give up our power to deal with life situations. Judging substitutes for action, because once we judge, we distance our self from the situation.

Then our possibility for awakened action in that moment is gone.

4.2. Interpretation

When we interpret, we are only in relationship with our own mind, not with the other person. When that occurs, we continue to condition our next response.

We interpret other people's behavior. How many have ever assumed you knew why someone said or did something? How many have discovered later that your assumption was wrong?

When we interpret, our experience is the way we believe things are, instead of what is true.

4.3. Projection

When we are having an experience we don't like, we act as if the other person is causing the experience. This is called projection.

When we assume a motive behind something, we're projecting. This can be positive or negative. If we do this with customers, it causes a disconnect and we can't get to the real problem.

Projection is a destructive form of behavior because it's based on denial. It's taking what we won't tolerate about ourselves, and putting it out on to the other person. Or taking what we admire in another and seeing them as special or better than.

Any time we have an experience that doesn't fit our picture of who we are, we attribute our emotion to another person. If it is a negative feeling we do it to distance ourselves. If it is a positive emotion, we lose ourselves as well. Whether positive or negative, we are unable to experience our natural emotions.

6. Authenticity

Authenticity is sharing your natural self. Everyone can tell if someone is being real. They may not consciously know why, but everyone feels it if someone is pretending. Authenticity attracts others who are also authentic. It's hard-wired into our brains as a survival mechanism.

We have been told repeatedly by society and shown by our family upbringing that we are supposed to hide certain emotions and not show our full humanness. We have been taught that it is better to repress, subliminate and ignore feelings that are "negative." The definition of which are "negative" vary according to your family's beliefs and history.

When we hide or repress our emotions, we eventually end up hiding them from ourselves. When that occurs, people around us pick up that which is not said and respond to our conflict with a conflict of their own...We are incongruent when we show one face on the outside and another to ourselves. When this occurs, our work and family suffer. We usually become ill or medicate ourselves. Our relationships and our results suffer.

6.1. You Always Communicate Your Intention

When a person's heart and mind are integrated, his communication is very clear. You don't ever have to think about what he's saying. You don't ever have to figure out the message when this integration is present. You don't ever have to hear different voices when he's talking. You just hear what he's saying and the message goes right into your body.

There is no incongruity between what they're saying and what they're feeling; what their minds are saying and what their hearts are saying. When this occurs in a leader success is the only thing possible.

7. Integrity

Our definition of integrity comes from a professor at MIT, Michael Jenson. It doesn't have an ethical or moral connotation or religious or philosophical basis. It is simple and elegant: You honor your word. We know we cannot always keep our word. We can always honor our word.

There are times when reality changes and we are unable to keep our word. We let the person know as ahead of time as we can. We ask them what they need so that they are whole. The times we don't honor our word add fire to our un-experienced anxiety.

Clues for knowing Integrity	Clues for Lack of Integrity
Vulnerable	Denial
Clarity	Illusion
Transparency (one face)	Noncommittal
Receive support	Projection and blame
Listening	Reaction
Proactive	Control
Responsible	Default
Spontaneity	Dread
Choice	Stuck

7.1. Lack of Integrity Application Exercise: Cleaning Up The Mess

Are you out of integrity at work by withholding part of yourself?

Are you out of integrity at work by pretending to be someone other than you are?

Are you out of integrity at work by changing your speech "to keep the peace"?

Are you out of integrity at work by hiding how you feel?

Are you out of integrity at work to get your way?

What lies are you telling yourself?

What is the effect of being out of integrity at work?

8. Six Principles of DLT

8.1. Insight

Knowing yourself and knowing others. Insight lets us know where our beliefs, values and points of view come from and how we view them. We see where in our lives we were conditioned to think, believe and feel the way we do. Insight is the preparation for Personal Responsibility.

8.2. Personal Responsibility

Owning yourself. Knowing that we are the source and authority of our experience, and recognizing how we create our results – tangible and intangible. Making amends for blame and judgment by dissolving 'right vs. wrong', 'better vs. worse' thinking in favor of a more balanced view and assuming that others have a positive intent. Handling damaged relationships.

8.3. Authenticity

Difference between reactive sharing and sharing your natural self. Everyone can tell if someone is being real. They may not consciously know why, but everyone feels it if someone is pretending. Authenticity attracts others who are also authentic. It's hard-wired into our brains as a survival mechanism. Taking risks. Taking a stand. Being true.

8.4. Integrity

What do you stand for and how you honor your word. You are your word. You walk your talk. You don't make promises you do not intend to keep. You tell the truth. Of course, your truth is not absolute and can change as you evolve.

8.5. Clear Mind

The fullness of clarity. The state of being that is without bias or preconceptions. Having openness to what is occurring in the present moment. Brings the ability to live in Paradox. Living in Paradox allows the brain to become an open system developing new neural pathways and alternative problem solving skills.

8.6. Awakened Action

Knowing what action to take to benefit yourself and others – being connected. Brings an ability to build collaboration and unity. Understands differing perspectives and how they are part of a whole. No need to argue about who is right anymore.

Thank you for participating in day 2 of our Leadership in Recovery Workshop. We enjoyed being with you.

For further information contact Ali Boaldin:
Office@radicalchoicesllc.com
+303 415 0056

Radical Choices

Disruptive Learning Technology™
Train the Trainer
Certification Program Participant Workbook
Session Three: Beyond Suffering
The Naked Bald Truth

Table of Contents

1. DAY ONE: KNOW WHAT IS/ OWN WHAT IS	3
1.1. PURPOSE.....	3
1.2. OPENING ACTIVITY	3
1.2.1. Unconditioned/Great Spirit/God On Trial For Crimes Against Humanity	3
1.3. NONDUAL AWARENESS VS. CONDITIONED EXPERIENCE	5
1.4. THE SIMPLE UGLY: PICTURES & HOW THEY AFFECT OUR LIVES	6
1.5. OUR PERSONAL GREEK TRAGEDY: OUR FATAL FLAW.....	6
1.6. APPLICATION ACTIVITY: WHO TOLD YOU THAT?.....	6
1.7. BEING VS. DOING	6
1.7.1. Group Sharing	7
1.8. DLT DAILY PRACTICE.....	7
1.9. FINAL OR EVENING ACTIVITY	7
2. DAY TWO: CLARITY.....	8
2.1. DAY ONE DEBRIEF	8
2.2. DISRUPTIVE LEARNING TECHNOLOGY DEMO: INDIVIDUAL	8
2.3. DISRUPTIVE LEARNING TECHNOLOGY CORE PERSPECTIVE.....	8
2.4. ARCHETYPES.....	9
2.4.1. Archetypes in Literary Characters – for use in next activity:	9
2.5. MYTHOLOGY ARCHETYPES: WHO WILL I BE IF I GIVE UP WHO I THINK I AM	10
2.6. THOUGHTS, FEELINGS & THEIR MEANING	11
2.6.1. Application Activity: Riding that Train or What Everyone Agrees is True About Feelings	11
2.7. TEACHING: CAN THERE BE AN ACTION WITHOUT A CONSEQUENCE?	11
2.8. APPLICATION ACTIVITY: SPEAKABLE ME.....	11
2.9. DLT DAILY PRACTICE.....	11
3. DAY THREE: TAKING IT OUT IN THE WORLD.....	12
3.1. DISRUPTIVE LEARNING TECHNOLOGY DEMO: ORGANIZATION	12
3.1.1. DLT Daily Practice	12
3.2. TIPS FOR A CLEAR MIND: UNDER THE HOOD	12
3.3. PRACTICE ACTIVITY: CLEAR MIND	13
3.4. PRACTICE ACTIVITY: AWAKENED ACTION.....	13
3.5. CLOSING ACTIVITY	13

Notes

1. Day One: Know What Is/ Own What Is

1.1. Purpose

To prepare us each and all to take this Disruptive Learning Technology out into the world in our relationships, our work, and our interactions - by being it.

1.2. Opening Activity

1.2.1. Unconditioned/Great Spirit/God On Trial For Crimes Against Humanity

Definition of crime against humanity - Merriam Webster

1: atrocity (as extermination or enslavement) that is directed especially against an entire population or part of a population on specious grounds and without regard to individual guilt or responsibility even on such grounds.

Roles: Randomly Assigned

- Prosecutor
 - Makes opening statement
 - Lays out the crimes and the evidence
 - Lawyer for Victim
- Defense Attorney
 - Makes opening statement
 - Defends Unconditioned/Great Spirit/God's actions
 - Lawyer for the defendant
- Defendant
 - Unconditioned/Great Spirit/God
- Victims
 - Against whom the crimes were committed
- Witnesses
 - Provide their accounts of the crimes
- Judge
 - Listens to evidence presented, maintains order, decides sentence
- Jury
 - Decides on guilt or innocence
- Public
 - Families, community members, etc. there to observe and make their own judgments
- Outside Arbitrator

Notes

These roles will change periodically during the morning, be prepared for each role. There will be time to prepare and to act out the trial including cross-examination and sentencing.

Notes

1.3. Nondual Awareness vs. Conditioned Experience

Notes

1.4. The Simple Ugly: Pictures & How They Affect Our Lives

Learning to become aware of true intentions is a skill directly related to achieving clarity and harmonious relationships.

We all developed pictures of how life is supposed to be: about relationships, childhood, parenting, making money, getting ahead, being happy, etc. Our pictures create expectations, demands for how we should act, how others should act toward us. Other people have other pictures. Pictures are not reality, and yet they engender very powerful feelings and behaviors.

For example, we fall in love with someone who fits our pictures, and we are so attached to those pictures that we ignore the reality of the relationship. We are addicted to our picture of reality and gather people who agree about our pictures about someone else, positive or negative. Being “stuck in our pictures” is just that – it is like glue that attaches itself to us psychically and often runs the show.

It is not logical, possible or reasonable that we do not have what we want. If there is something that we want that we do not have, it is because a part of us wants something else. Our results reflect our deepest, full intention. Intention is amoral and it attaches to the strongest part of our will – the part we don’t see. We have it the way our conditioning demands.

1.5. Our Personal Greek Tragedy: Our Fatal Flaw

What we are afraid of is that which we cannot see about our self. In a Greek Tragedy the hero has a fatal flaw. We can all see it as we read or watch the play. Yet, we cannot do anything to save our hero. He has to see it for himself.

1.6. Application Activity: Who Told You That?

In front of the room, we each come up individually to share our pictures with the group, where they came from and what affect this has had in our life. Use all of the presentation skills that we’ve learned so far.

1.7. Being vs. Doing

Poetry is being, not doing.

If you wish to follow,

even at a distance,

the poet’s calling,

You’ve got to come out of the

Notes

measurable doing universe into the immeasurable house of being.

Nobody else can be alive for you –
Nor can you be alive for anyone else.

If you can take it – take it and be.

If you can't – cheer up and go about other people's business and do or undo
til you drop. -e.e. cummings

1.7.1. Group Sharing

1.8. DLT Daily Practice

Within every sentence is the answer. We listen without our own point of view or judgments.
Language takes us somewhere: Notice these sure-fire language tip-offs when we or someone else are in our conditioning, defending something:

Explanations	Reasons
I think...	I feel that she/he...
I understand...	I already do this ...
To me, ...	In my mind,...
In my opinion, ...	I really want to...
Nothing ever changes...	This is because...
This is who I am...	I'm trying...

1.9. Final or Evening Activity

We each write our own eulogy/obituary if we died just as we are now, at this moment in time.
Be prepared to share it tomorrow.

Notes

2. Day Two: Clarity

2.1. Day One Debrief

Share anything that came up last night or yesterday that was not addressed. Share eulogies/obituaries.

2.2. Disruptive Learning Technology Demo: Individual

Judith will work with an individual in front of the room to demonstrate and teach under the hood of DLT.

2.3. Disruptive Learning Technology Core Perspective

In order to have Clarity, we have to know what's true in the moment. Truth is always relative and changes with each moment.

Disruptive Learning Technology™ Core Perspective:

- The essential you is no different from the essential me. There is only one. Everything in the universe arises from that essence.
- All of our thoughts, feelings, sensations, interpretations, opinions, come from us
- Blame is a choice to give our essential power to someone else to be responsible for.
- We each have unique gifts, talents and skills. No other is exactly like us in our conditioning.
- Believing we can hide ourselves from others is just another illusion.
- Our suffering is held in place by strong beliefs and opinions that can be in opposition to another or our true nature.
- Inferior or superior, competing, hiding, judging erode the landscape of our self, making it difficult to see through reactive states.
- Our thoughts are just thoughts. Believing them is like eating the menu at a restaurant rather than the food.

Notes

- All physical sensations are our experience.
- We can depend on our direct experience to let us know what is going on.
- We cannot be other than who we are.
- Do no harm. We can only do that when we share ourselves.

2.4. Archetypes

In literature, an archetype is a typical character, an action or a situation that seems to represent universal patterns of human nature.

Carl Jung, Swiss psychologist, argued that the root of an archetype is in the “collective unconscious” of mankind. The phrase “collective unconscious” refers to experiences shared by a race or culture. This includes love, religion, death, birth, life, struggle, survival etc. These experiences exist in the subconscious of every individual and are recreated in literary works or in other forms of art.

Definition: in Jungian psychology, the part of the unconscious mind that is derived from ancestral memory and experience and is common to all humankind, as distinct from the individual's unconscious.

2.4.1. Archetypes in Literary Characters – for use in next activity:

The Hero

He or she is a character who predominantly exhibits goodness and struggles against evil in order to restore harmony and justice to society

The Mother

Such a character may be represented as Fairy Mother who guides and directs a child, Mother Earth who contacts people and offers spiritual and emotional nourishment, and Stepmother who treats their stepchildren roughly.

Notes

The Innocent Youth

He or she is inexperienced with many weaknesses and seeks safety with others but others like him/her because of the trust he or she shows in other people. Usually, the experience of coming of age comes in the later parts of the narratives.

The Magician

His or her task is to alchemize the main character. It is through the wise advice and training of a magician that the main character achieves success.

The Doppelganger

It is a duplicate or shadow of a character that represents the evil side of his personality.

The Scapegoat

A character that takes the blame of everything bad that happens

The Villain

A character whose main function is to go to any extent to oppose the hero or whom the hero must annihilate in order to bring justice

2.5. Mythology Archetypes: Who Will I Be If I Give Up Who I Think I am

Part One

In teams of three, take 15 minutes to reflect on what archetype we are living out or have lived out. Who would we be if we stepped out of the Archetype?

Part Two

Share individually with class from front of the room.

Notes

2.6. Thoughts, Feelings & Their Meaning

2.6.1. Application Activity: Riding that Train or What Everyone Agrees is True About Feelings

In teams, take 15 minutes to discover what thoughts and feelings about our life or our self, we are addicted to. Also reflect on the agreement/disagreement in our family of origin or in society for them. Can we wait for someone else to be different? Team shares with the group what they discovered.

2.7. Teaching: Can There Be An Action Without A Consequence?

2.8. Application Activity: Speakable Me

*Seeing through our reactive state without judgment. This is the Disruption.

Directions

Take 15 minutes to think about your reactive states. In front of the room, we each come up individually to share about our reactive states without judgment. Class gives feedback.

2.9. DLT Daily Practice

Within every sentence is the answer. We listen without our own point of view or judgments. Language takes us somewhere: Notice these sure-fire language tip-offs when we or someone else are in our conditioning, defending something:

Explanations	Reasons
I think...	I feel that she/he...
I understand...	I already do this ...
To me, ...	In my mind,...
In my opinion, ...	I really want to...
Nothing ever changes...	This is because...
This is who I am...	I'm trying...

Notes

3. Day Three: Taking It Out In The World

Day Two debrief

3.1. Disruptive Learning Technology Demo: Organization

Judith will work with members of an organization in front of the room to demonstrate and teach under the hood of the technology.

3.1.1. DLT Daily Practice

Within every sentence is the answer. We listen without our own point of view or judgments. Language takes us somewhere: Notice these sure-fire language tip-offs when we or someone else are in our conditioning, defending something:

Explanations	Reasons
I think...	I feel that she/he...
I understand...	I already do this ...
To me, ...	In my mind,...
In my opinion, ...	I really want to...
Nothing ever changes...	This is because...
This is who I am...	I'm trying...

When someone gives us info, we see the "soft spot "and we go right in. We don't add or take away anything. Allow the person to discover themselves- correction is unnecessary.

3.2. Tips for a Clear Mind: Under the Hood

- Look at the whole until you can see; without discoloration. When you notice yourself compartmentalizing, begin again with the whole.
- Hold your shape in the presence of someone's changing reality.
- Notice when you are in someone else's movie.
- Feel whatever you feel without labeling until it infuses your body with its wisdom.
- Be willing to allow your image of yourself to be blown away. ARE YOU WILLING?

Notes

3.3. Practice Activity: Clear Mind

Large Group Discussion:

- How does the mass consciousness conditioned field affect us?
- How do our actions affect the field around us?

A clear mind is open to unlimited possibilities. There is no agenda. There are no conclusions. There are no problems. There is only a dance that is going on with all the participants in the field. The dance can change depending on what is needed in the moment. As this occurs we develop new neural pathways that allow us to be in the world from a context of love. When behavior from old patterns is changed, that system begins to dissolve and we experience a void, emptiness, and a clear mind - which is the birth of awakened action.

3.4. Practice Activity: Awakened Action

Team Presentations:

- How do we escape the mass consciousness conditioned field?
- How do our thoughts, feelings, behaviors affect the field?

3.5. Closing Activity

Each person comes up individually and presents our plan for taking DLT out into the world in our relationships, our work, and our interactions.

Notes

Thank you for participating in the Train-the-Trainer Pilot Program.

We know we will apply what we have learned in this program to experience true connection with the people and organizations we care about.

If you would like further information or have input for us, please contact Ali at:
ali@radicalchoicesllc.com
+303 415 0056

