

EXTENDED TEACHING PROGRAM
INSTRUCTOR'S MANUAL
DRAFT

Extended Teaching Program (Personal Responsibility Training)

Instructor's Notes:

The ETP is an educational curriculum in the teachings of PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY. It is not therapy or a substitute for therapy. The instructor's role is to teach the information introduced in the Choices Weekend on a deeper, more personal level. The participants are responsible for their own learning and how they choose to use the information.

The instructor sets the context of personal responsibility by being with the truth of their own and each participant's experience while at the same time teaching the content of each session. They do not process anyone unless that particular experience will demonstrate a point in the teaching.

As the material is taught, and participants begin their journey, they will be in and out of their old belief systems or illusions regularly. When a participant is in their illusion, the instructor stays with the content they share until they are about to have a monster fight, or the participant is clearly incongruent.

The instructor then STOPS the interaction and uses the content to teach about what is true in the situation, ALWAYS using humor and without judgement. If there are any judgements, the instructor demonstrates a way to include not judging the judgements.

It is not the instructor's responsibility to see that the participants use the information in a positive, supportive way, but rather to see that the truth about their choice is clear. This sets the context of unconditional love as well by demonstrating acceptance that everyone is responsible for their own life. This is a crucial part of the transformation process.

The intention is to allow the participants to be 100% responsible for the learning they receive from the program.

The TA is there to support the instructor during the session to stay centered and clear. They will also be available to the participants for support during the intervals between sessions.

- Session 2 - Living from Unlimited Personal Responsibility
- Session 3 - Integrating the Primary Family
- Session 4 - Vision and Power
- Session 5 - Creating Adult Relationships
- Session 6 - Bodies, Sex, and Physical Integration
- Session 7 - Personal Integrity
- Session 8 - Mastering the Process of Change: A Demonstration

Session One:

Owning Your Personal History

Session One - Owning Your Personal History

First Evening: (6:00 PM to 9:00 PM)

 Welcome everyone to the Extended Teaching Program. Introduce yourself. Share your connection to QED and the Choices work, and begin modeling intimacy and personal responsibility by talking about yourself and your intention in this ETP. ♥♥

 Introduce the TA. Explain that the role of the TA is to support you during the program and to be available to support them to be clear between sessions.

 Ask everyone to introduce themselves and share their reasons for doing this program. Ask them to do their best to be intimate as they share about themselves. (Video)

 Let them know how important it is to fully experience what they are doing in every moment--like right now. This is the key to the program. 🔑

Do the "wisdom is the result of experience" poster.

 Hand out ETP notebooks.  Explain that the sessions will each have a specific focus. Refer to the Table of Contents page that lists the curriculum.

This first session is on Owning your Personal History. Let them know that they will be getting handouts throughout the program. Encourage them to bring in articles, poems, etc. to share with everyone.  Ask them to keep a scrapbook of their journey.

 Collect a Personal Discovery Form  from each participant. (Have extras on hand in case someone did not bring one and ask them to return it to you by tomorrow morning.)

 Talk about participants sharing the logistics responsibilities in the program--or doing some kind of community service in groups during the program if the ETP is in a hotel.  Ask people what their experience of service is and what reactions they have to doing it. Talk about the value of those reactions and of being able to serve others, work in groups and keep agreements no matter how they feel.

 Ask them if they agree to be on time.  Tell them that the program will begin on time.

 Break (30 minutes )

 Tell them they will be meeting in groups  each month and that these groups will change.

Have them look around   and see who they want in their group and who they would rather die than spend time with. Who do they have judgements about? Tell them to savor those judgements while they last.

 Have them choose their groups. (5 minutes )

 Have people meet in their groups and share their personal history. Ask them to share any secrets,  to let people in their groups know who they are right now, not who they think they should be or who they plan to be. Remind them that the key  to the program is to experience what is true now. (30 minutes )

 Sharing.

 Let the group know that the formal instruction ends each day at dinner except for Thursday night. They will meet with their groups Friday and Saturday evenings with specific assignments in order to integrate the day's material. And the program will end at 5:00 on Sunday. Let them know that you will talk on Sunday about scheduling, family day and retreats. And that you will be taking a walk (or something like that) together on Sunday and every session.

 End the evening with "In a Simple Way" or "The Rose"

Day Two : (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Start day with the context of the entire program and allow sharing from participants.

 Use the sharing during the next two days to review the basics (with posters) of:

✓ Reaction: the cover-up for feelings that were not acceptable in our families.

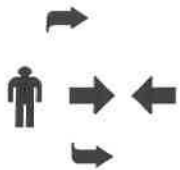

Review the clues for being in reaction: 1) not in the present, 2) body feels tight, 3) things seem to be coming at you instead of you being the source, 4) when you think that what you feel is about or because of someone else, 5) your mind won't shut up, 6) you want to prove a point, 7) you are judging, 8) you feel compelled

✓ Feelings not experienced get stuck and control you

✓ Projection: thinking that someone else is doing something to you or thinking/feeling something that you are doing/thinking/feeling yourself and don't want to know it.

✓ Intimacy - telling someone how you feel or think or what you experience about you without blaming them. ♥

✓ Head vs Heart: Your mind is a catalogue of your past experiences. It interprets things according to that past.  Your heart tells you what is true now and does not judge whether or not you are reacting. ♥

✓ Personal Responsibility: choosing how you respond to something despite the programming from your past.
 Seeing yourself as the source of your experience and results without judgement. ♥

✓ Unconditional Love: means accepting ALL of you including your judgements. ♥♥♥

(While doing the review, use material shared from participants as much as possible. Make sure you demonstrate including sharing your own stuck places.)

 Ask people their specific personal goals
 and intention for the program in regard to: their relationships, career, family, body and sex, and where they want to be 9 months from now. And also how committed they are to doing whatever is necessary to get the result they want and what they will do to demonstrate the commitment.
 (Put this sharing on their individual videos. Give them 30 minutes to prepare. )

 Ask participants to give each other feedback about their experience. Remind them that peer support will be a major element in the program and that support means telling someone the truth of your experience. Demonstrate this and share differences between feelings and experience.

(Videoing people stating their goals and giving them feedback should take the entire day. Remember to use the content presented by the participants to teach and review the concepts taught in the Weekend.)

 If there is time, have people share what their vision was from their Weekend. ☆☆☆

 Have people meet in their groups  during the evening and share with each other what they need to experience right now in their lives and what their resistance is to experiencing it.

 End day with "Can't Buy Me Love" or "Sounds of Silence"

Day Three (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Start day with sharing.

 Have people share the present truth  about the state of their relationships, their jobs, their family, their body and in general their emotional, mental and spiritual health right now.

 Use participants' sharing to teach the concepts of:

- the relationship between Love and Money ♥&$
Both are energy and how we are about giving and receiving one will likely be true for the other.
- Support vs Taking Control Of --the difference is in the intention. One is for connection ♥ and the other is to ease our own discomfort .
- Any of the concepts from the Weekend not reviewed yesterday or their questions.

 Ask them to notice:  Every time they want to change their experience or appear different to others than what is true in the moment; or any time they leave the present moment for either the past or the future.

 Lunch

 Exercise: have them meet in their groups and share their favorite story about their childhood. (e.g. abandoned, princess, abused.) Have them present it. Then have them share the truth that the story protected them from experiencing. (one & a half hours )

 After the exercise, have people come back in the large group and share what they discovered.

Teach about illusion.

 Sharing

 Ask them to meet in their groups  after dinner to prepare a short autobiography that they will present individually on Sunday.

 Remind them that you will be taking a walk together (or whatever) tomorrow morning at 9:00. Let them know where. Also ask them to bring their calendars tomorrow so that you can schedule the next few sessions.

 End with "I Want to Live"

Day Four (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Begin day with walk

 Sharing

 Have people present their autobiographies. Put them on their individual videos. Allow 15 - 20 minutes each.  Have the group give each other feedback. (This should take most of the day.) Their sharing is also a demonstration of what they have owned about themselves this weekend.

 In the afternoon, talk about :

- Family day -  One day a session, usually on Saturday, we allow participants to bring their family members that they would like to include or with whom they would like to handle something to come for part or all of the day. The purpose for this is to support the ETP participant, NOT to do any work on their guests. It is a time for ETPers to share what they are doing here with their family. Ask them to let the TA know when & who is coming.
- There will not be a family day in Session Four about Vision and Power or in Session Six about Bodies, Sex and Physical Integration. They will be 4 & 1/2 day retreats, residential, somewhere nice.
- Scheduling - Plan the dates for the next three sessions. Have them enter the dates on the schedule sheet in their workbooks.

- Assignments: ✍ (have them write them on the assignment sheets in their workbooks)
- Read "The Talisman" by Stephen King
- Personal exercise programs 🧘 - talk about how the health of the body affects your emotional health as well as your emotional health affecting the body. Find out what each person does for exercise. Ask everyone to commit to a regular exercise program.

👉 Final sharing.

👉 End the session with "What a Wonderful World" 🎵

Session Two:

Living From Personal Responsibility

Session Two - Living From Personal Responsibility

First Evening (6:00 PM - 9:00 PM)

 Connecting and sharing.♥♥ The purpose of the evening session is for everyone to connect and set the stage for the focus for this session: personal responsibility.

 Have the group define personal responsibility. Make sure there is an alignment that has their definition match ours.

- What does it mean to be really responsible?

Personal Responsibility: The ability to create a response in the moment from nothing. (unlimited options) To choose your response rather than be compelled by your past patterns.

- Being responsible changes the context of life (context = how you see things)
- From the context of personal responsibility, all humans are equal; having the same value
- Ask: what would your life be like if you lived responsibly?
- Ask: What is the difference between reacting to an external event and reacting to an internal event?
- Ask: What is the difference between asking for what you want and creating what you want?

• Ask: What keeps you from being responsible? Allow participants to have the truth of their particular experience without correcting them.

 Teach that most people's behavior is based on what they feel and that behavior need not depend on feelings:

You can:

- 1) envision what you are going to create (vision),
- 2) commit to living and demonstrating vision (decision)
- 3) then do it (action), regardless of how you feel.

Assume that you have the power to create.

Be inspired to go beyond the limits of how you feel or what you think is possible.

 When there are options you are not responding to that will support your growth and bring you closer to your vision, or options that you won't examine, then you are not being responsible.

 Assignment : Take note of your level of responsibility in your relationships and at work. Just notice. Share what you discovered with someone next to you.

 End evening with "What One Man Can Do"

p Assignment : Take note of your level of responsibility in your relationships and at work. Just notice. Share what you discovered with someone next to you.

p End evening with "What One Man Can Do"

Day Two Session Two (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Open with Sharing.

 Ask people:

- what is the purpose of "right and wrong"?
- Is there such a thing? Do you want to live your life according to what is "right" or "wrong"?

 Teach that:

- people need limits on their behavior for safety. How do you set limits for your behavior if there is no "right" or "wrong"?
- children especially need limits so they can grow.

 Have them talk about what limits were set on their behavior (not feelings) as a child and what were the effects of those limits or lack of limits.

What limits do they set on their children's behavior and what are the results?

 Lunch

 Let them know the rest of the day's agenda:

- 1) the effects of not being responsible -
 - loss of personal power and indecisiveness
- 2) and
 - All fights are with yourself.
 - Your relationship with yourself determines your relationship with the world and everyone in it.
 - clarity and unconditional love are the results of being personally responsible.

 Discuss the components of personal responsibility:

- taking care of yourself, including your feelings.
- being equal
- experiencing and telling the truth (no illusions)

Ask yourself - what are the results of my behavior?

Does this serve me or not?

- being compassionate with yourself when you judge
- being congruent - having your behavior, your intention, and your vision match.

 Exercise:

- 1) Find a partner.
- 2) Choose an area of your life that you feel you cannot be responsible for. Why not?
- 3) As a small child, talk to your parent or other appropriate person about this. (Your partner will play that person.)
- 4) See what they tell you in return.
- 5) Together, reach a resolution where there is no blame. ♥
- 6) From that place of no blame, let yourself know why you chose your parents.

 Break

 Teach that the essence of personal responsibility is to create your life exactly the way you want it to be.

 Ask: What gets in the way of being responsible?
Make sure the answer boils down to:

Fear of Freedom

- false guilt - being afraid of being caught or punished by someone for being "bad." This is a smoke screen to stop growth.
- self-hatred or self-punishment. This takes the place of change. It also ensures that the behavior you are judging will continue. It is an addictive behavior. It is a way not to feel.

 Ask who is bringing someone to Family Day. Find out what the participant's relationship is like with whoever they are bringing. This relationship is what the group will be supporting. You will not be doing any work with the guests.

Ask them what support they would like with the family member they are bringing. They may just want to share this experience. Find out which it is. Let them know that you will always take the guest's side in any issue.

 Evening exercise : (hand out instructions)

On Responsibility

Choose partners. ➔ Join another pair to form a group of 4.

The purpose of the exercise is to learn how to

- 1) share responsibly,
- 2) listen responsibly
- 3) give support.

Share with your partner how you are not responsible in your relationship, your job, your family.
Then share what actions you could take to be responsible.

Your partner shares with you his/her experience of what you are saying and your level of responsibility.

The other pair in your group supports your partner to be equal with you.

Complete all roles and then move on to another group.

End evening with "Imagine"

*Session 2Day Three (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)Family Day

 Welcome any family members, make them feel at home. Ask them where they're from, what they do, etc. Tell them what Family day is for: a time for the participant to share what they are doing here with their family. Explain (if they are the participant's parents) that our experience is that all parents love their children unconditionally. Ask the parent, "is there anything that could do that would make you not love them?" Teach how most of us think we need to be a certain way with our family so we'll be loved. This results in most of us not seeing our parents or other family members very clearly. This time in the ETP is for the participants to see their families more clearly and to let go of some of the assumptions they've made about them. Tell some funny stories about how "pig headed" the participants can be and how much their parents/ families want them. Invite family members to participate if they wish, to ask any questions and to make themselves at home.

 Sharing and review of last night's exercise.

 Continue building the context of safety ➔

- The purpose of the ETP is to discover how we operate. To do that we need to be willing to have our experience.
- Making mistakes creates opportunities for learning when the behavior is corrected.
- When the behavior from the old patterns is changed, the old system begins to disintegrate and we experience a void - which is the birth of creation.

Consistent new behavior creates a new system.

 Work with the family members and participants.

 Lunch

 Remaining agenda:

- 1) Practice speaking responsibly now.*
- 2) Demonstrate your old system today in everything you do.*
- 3) You will demonstrate your new system of behavior based on personal responsibility tomorrow.

* 1 and 2 together create a paradox

 Teach about Integrity - being whole, unimpaired, with no part left out.

- the advantages of living in integrity lead to happiness, success and peace
- the disadvantages to not living in integrity lead to broken agreements, operating with partial senses, and distance from yourself.

 Exercise : Share everything about yourself you don't want to talk about. Be responsible and demonstrate your old system.

 Teach that there is no separation. We are all connected. Feelings and thoughts are energy. That energy passes through us. So what we don't experience, others will.

 Remind people that you will be taking a walk together (or some other exercise) in the morning. Let them know where to meet.

 Hand out "Great Moral Stake of Moment." Ask them to read it before tomorrow.

 Tell them that they will be watching the movie  "Nuts" with Barbara Streisand together that evening.

 Ask guests if they have anything they would like to say. Thank them for coming.

 End day with "It's About Time"

Day Four (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Open with sharing. Include support to participants who had family members there.

 Discuss the purpose of support.

- How you interpret what you experience is based on your old system. It is impossible to change systems by yourself. You must have the support of people who know your intended change and will be equal with you. Taking support despite the demands of your old system.

 Exercise:

- 1) Choose an issue that is current in your life.
- 2) Share the issue as you would in your old system.
- 3) Share the issue demonstrating personal responsibility with support from the group.

 Lunch

 Break into pairs and continue the exercise.
(1 and 1/2 hours )

 Discussion of exercise.

- The difference in communication between the old way and the new:
 - Responsible communication focuses on you
 - You are in control of what you say.
- The temptation to be irresponsible increases as you become more responsible.

 What do you need to handle from personal responsibility in your relationship with your parents?

 Assignments: (have them write in workbooks)

- Notice your level of personal responsibility in your relationships and at work.
- Read "Illusions" by Richard Bach
- Have a responsible conversation with your parents. If they are dead, choose a surrogate that brings up the same issues.

 Talk about the retreat that you will do during session four - Vision. It is two days longer and will be residential. They are responsible for their own transportation and expenses including lodging. Come to a decision with the group about where it will be. There will be no family day at the retreat.

 End session with "The Living Years"

Session Three

Integrating the Primary Family

Session Three: Integrating the Primary Family

First Evening (6:00 PM - 9:00 PM)

 Gossip and sharing. The purpose for the evening session is for everyone to connect, and to set the stage for the focus for this session - integrating the primary family.

 Find out how they did with their assignments. What results did they get?

 If they did not do them - why not? Stay with each person, clarifying their reasons until there is a clear answer. (e.g. "I didn't want to", "I was not willing to feel what I would feel if I did ...")
This has to be done without judgement. Put on flip chart.

 Find out why the people that did do the assignments did them. Put on same flip chart.

 Ask them what percentage of why they do things is still for their parent's approval or disapproval. Go around the room. Now ask the same question and ask them to respond from their heart.

 Break

 Do a review about how our patterns of behavior are set.

Do the "Bliss to Now" poster for sensations > feelings > reactions. Then remind them that when reactions are reinforced, often enough they become the patterns of behavior and beliefs about what is so. We lose track of the original sensations and operate separate from ourselves. We are in our heads, mainly in illusion and on automatic pilot.

 This session is about integrating your family system and choosing your own patterns of how you want to live and be from the context of personal responsibility.

 They can expect to feel very uncomfortable at times because the glue that holds those patterns in place is our love for and desire to be loved by our families. This is usually experienced through a psychic connection from our childhood.

 Have them close their eyes for a moment and get in touch with the child (that they were) that loved their parents no matter what. Let that child know that what you plan to do here this weekend will let you be more real with your family, even though it may feel otherwise at times.

 Sharing.

 Ask them to bring their calendars on Sunday so you can schedule the rest of the sessions.

 End evening with "Lovin' Arms"

Day Two (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

Sharing.

 Ask people to share what it was like in their families when they were growing up. What behaviors were rewarded and what was the reward? What feelings were allowed and which were not? Give lots of space.

 Review the difference between feelings and reactions when someone has demonstrated one or the other during the sharing.

 In particular, point out when someone is in their illusion about what happened in their childhood. Offer them other ways to look at the situation they are describing. (For example, if they are describing a parent that did not love them, you might suggest that perhaps the parent felt inadequate or incapable of loving and therefore was not demonstrative.) This is a time to teach about how our childhood family thoughts become imbedded and shape our present experience.

If they fight with you, use it as an opportunity to teach about how we are all sure we are right about what happened in our families. Talk about the consequences of being right - you get to be right.

 Teach what happens when you let in new information--chaos occurs. All the feelings that were protected by being right, numb, angry, etc. come flooding in. Your system gets perturbed. If the upset is strong enough, stays long enough, and is experienced as coming from inside, true lasting change is possible.

Lunch

Mom/ Dad Game :

Have them get in their groups and become their same sex parent. (e.g. men become their fathers and women become their mothers.) Give out name tags and have them put on the tag the name of that parent. Give out instruction sheet:

Mom and Dad Game

Become your same sex parent at 20 years old and then the age they are now (even if they are dead) talking about Love, Sex, Marriage, Children, Money, Work, Power, Intimacy and Success. (30 minutes )

Then switch and become your opposite sex parent. Be that parent talking about the same issues as before.

(30 minutes )

How are you like your Mother?

How are you like your Father?

Hand out new name tags when they switch and have them write that parent's name on the tag.

Ask them to fill out the part about how they are like each parent during the break.

 Have them share what about them is like their parents. And what about their parents they would rather die than be like. Then, have the group support each other about what they are like to be with. Make sure that they understand support before they do this exercise.

 Teach about projection: giving their power away by thinking that someone else (parents, lovers, children, co-workers) is doing to you what you are doing to yourself. Or thinking that someone else is feeling what you are feeling or thinking what you are thinking. Now, even if it is true that others are doing what you think they are doing, what does that have to do with your response?

Most of what we think is true about our parents is a projection.

 Ask them to meet in their groups after dinner to support each other in taking back all the projections they have on their parents. Sometimes, people have to look at their relationships with their children or lovers in order to get to their parents.

 End the day with "Father and Son"

Day Three (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM) Family Day

 Welcome any family members. Give them the same information about the purpose of Family Day as found in Session Two.

 Sharing. Ask people what they found out about their projections.

 Create space for participants with family members there to do any sharing with them. Support the participant to share intimately, clearly, and responsibly. The ideal is for the participant to take all projections off the family member and to share about their own behavior and its affects on them and their relationship with that person. Demonstrate so that it is clear to both the participant and the family members how to do it.

 Ask the group what they think are the effects of projection. Write on flip chart.

Make sure the results include: isolation, feeling like a victim, self-hate, righteousness, shame.

 Ask the group why people resist seeing their projections. Why do they?

What are the clues to projection? (blame, judgement, being obsessed with someone else's behavior or motivation, feeling victimized, feeling controlled)

 Lunch

 Projection Game: Have people get in their groups. Each person chooses a "difficult family member" in their own lives. First talk about that family member to the rest of the group. (30 minutes 🕒)

Then they become that "difficult family member" (with name tags), and speak to the rest of the group about how they think and feel in the relationship. (30 minutes 🕒)

 Sharing

 Teach about what happens when you take back projections. You experience truths about yourself that make you feel crazy. All the parts of yourself that you judge become conscious and are right in your face.

 The key to successfully taking back your projections is letting go of the fantasy of approval. Approval is a creation of the mind that we give immense power over us. Its power comes from our belief that if we didn't act in certain ways, our families would not love us. So we altered ourselves according to a perceived outside standard, and we changed or hid whatever doesn't match that standard. The experience of vulnerability and intimacy cuts through projection and eliminates hiding. This hiding and pretense is the clothing of projection.

 Some of us on the other hand, chose to go for disapproval. It may have been our only connection with our family and works the same way as approval does. We are still focused on the outside to determine the acceptability of our behavior.

 In either case we continue to look to the outside to define whether or not we are loveable or acceptable. Letting go of the outside means that we allow our true experience of ourselves and the world around us and show others what is true about us no matter how we feel about it. When we do this, we create an inside self that speaks to us that we can depend on for the rest of our life.

 Ask the group to spend the rest of the time noticing what they do or have done in the program that is for approval or disapproval.

Give space for anyone to talk about that.

 Let the group know that they will be watching "Dead Poet's Society" that evening. And that you will be taking a walk (or whatever) together at 9:00 AM at They will also be asked to demonstrate having integrated their primary family on Sunday.

 Ask the family members if they have anything they would like to say..... Thank them for coming.

 End day with "Memories" from Cats

Day Four (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

After walk:

 Sharing

 During the morning, teach again about how and when patterns are set:

The basic patterns of sensation>feeling>reactions are set at age 0 - 3; age 3 - 11 is when the behaviors are wired in to support the patterns and the beliefs are established; age 11 - 20 is when the behaviors get cemented in.

 Teach the way to change patterns: In order to change a pattern, you must choose the way you want to be, and do the behaviors that create that way of being. And keep to that course of action simply because you chose it; despite the feelings, thoughts and resistance of your old patterns. Make your word the law of your universe.

 Hand out “Dating Your MOM” to read during break.

 Break

 Sharing. See if anyone had a reaction to “Dating Your Mom.” If so what were they?

 Our society has a strong taboo against incest. We are not suggesting incest to anyone, but it is important for them to know that breaking their patterns will seem as outrageous at times as dating their mom because the taboos in their families against certain behaviors are as strong as the one about incest.

 Demonstration:

Ask the group to spend the rest of the day taking turns presenting their true experience of themselves in regard to their childhood and families. Have them include what current behaviors continue their beliefs and patterns from their childhood.

 Assignments for next session: (Have them write in their notebooks.)

- Read “The Kin of Atta are Waiting for You”
- In your notebook, write the following scenario:

You are in a room with your parents and it is the LAST TIME you will ever talk to them. (If they are dead now, give yourself this final opportunity to speak with them.) And, they will ever talk to you. Have a conversation about what is really meaningful to all of you.

- If after doing the previous assignment, you discover some unfinished business with a family member, please take care of it from a context of personal responsibility.

 Remind them that the next session is a retreat. Let them know where it will be and give them directions on how to get there and that there is no Family Day next time. Schedule the rest of the sessions. Remember that Session Six is also a retreat. End session with “The Living Years”

ETP Session Three - Integrating the Primary Family

MY LAST CONVERSATION WITH MY PARENTS :

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins or other markings on the paper.

Session Four:

Vision and Power

Session Four -Vision and Power

(This Session is a retreat session with an extra day, residential, usually in a different location.)

First Evening (6:00 PM- 9:00 PM) Wed. night

 Sharing and connecting. Tell the participants that this session is about Vision and Power and that tonight (Wed) through Friday afternoon is preparation for a vision quest Friday night through Saturday.

-  Teach about perturbation and change➡
- When we take in and receive new information, there is multiple data, multiple beliefs about the same situation, conflicting information. The old belief system mixed with the present reality. The brain cannot tolerate it. And there is strong agitation and perturbation.
 - The brain is a dissipating structure. It is an open system and with enough perturbation it shifts to a higher order, which means it can contain a bigger picture and can hold more paradox and ambiguity.
 - Perturbation that YOU create from within in order to grow creates lasting change. Staying with the chaos, with no interpretation, and sharing it results in a shift.
 - Perturbation from the outside creates a temporary high but no lasting change. The impetus is experienced as happening to the person. They experience no real power. An example of this is falling “in love.” Discuss differences of being in love and falling in love.

 End evening with “Changes Coming On”

Day Two (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM) Thursday

Open Sharing

Exercise: (hand out instructions) (1&1/2 hours )

- Choose groups.

In your groups complete the following exercise. Give each other feedback about your level of congruence as you share your list.

Complete Part I as a group before going on to Part II.

ETP Session Four - Core Values

Part I :

List your 10 most important core values:

- | | |
|----|-----|
| 1) | 6) |
| 2) | 7) |
| 3) | 8) |
| 4) | 9) |
| 5) | 10) |

Why are they important to you?

What do they mean in your life?

Do you live them in your everyday life?

Part II:

List what gets in your way of not living your values:

(Make lots of space for this to be clearly written or discussed.)

Talk about how core values are related to purpose and that they will be spending a lot of time on purpose as the retreat goes on.

 Group shares core values and why they are not living them. During this discussion, the issues of freedom and unconditional love will be brought up. Keep bringing discussion around to how living core values creates the possibility of having unconditional love and freedom as a way of life. The final realization will be that personal responsibility starts with living your own core values.

Lunch

 Discussion: How do you live a life based on unconditional love and freedom?

- Ask questions - get into life, relationships, etc.
- How do you maintain a relationship?
- How do you live in paradox/contradiction?
- What can you do when someone you love breaks an agreement and isn't guilty, etc. How do you deal with your own feelings?

-  How to deal with fear and uncomfortable feelings:
- When you have strong anxiety do the connected breathing exercise. (Inhale slowly for as long as you can, counting each second, and then exhale slowly for as long as you can also counting each second. Repeat continuously for about 10 minutes.)
 - Loneliness comes from hiding who you are, even from yourself. Stop hiding and loneliness goes away.
 - Upset over mistakes - see them as essential. No learning happens without mistakes. Experience the feelings without doing anything to remove them from your experience.

 Discussion on teaching of values - Parent to child. Allow them to explore their own childhood and how they learned what was valuable and if they still believe it.

 To live your own vision will require behaviors different from those you were taught growing up.

 Tell them that we will be discussing purpose tomorrow. Ask them to spend the evening remembering and knowing what is true about themselves. Ask them to ask themselves to have a dream about their purpose and to remember it.

 End evening with “ Sweet Surrender”

Day Three (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM) Friday

 Today's purpose is to identify issues, clarify purpose, and define the components of vision.

 Review the information about vision being the picture of your purpose brought to life. Ask what their purpose is and whether they are connected to that purpose by knowing or if it is a belief. Teach the difference between knowing and belief. This may be taught over and over again.

 What does it take to stay true to your vision?

- Commitment - to be strong enough to withstand your addictions, old history, obsessions.
- A desire for Freedom - to be your true self, even if that desire is not felt or even thought.
- Staying out of reaction, or as soon as you are in reaction, you immediately choose to stop whatever you are doing and take a breath and find out what is really true.

 Have them share: "What's really true about Me?" with rest of group including everyone. No form to this - however, if they are in their heads, let them know. Put a time limit if needed.

 Lunch

 Introduce Purpose ➔ your basic purpose is why you were born - it is your soul's adventure here.

 Vision is that purpose brought to life - a picture of what would be true if you lived your purpose.

 Vision quest will start immediately after instructions and purpose meditation.

 Vision Quest context:

- Just expect love to happen tonight
- Eat a light dinner and only if hungry
- Be within calling distance of house or hotel
- The idea is to be with yourself and be into yourself
- The more extreme you break your patterns of sleep, and food, and exercise, (within the context of safety), the more the courting of vision
- You can call on your spiritual guides
- Have true intention to receive information from your soul - take whatever you get, don't reject or interpret any information
- Silence
- Honor your experience - recognize it, don't dodge it
- Ask with all your heart and soul to be allowed inside yourself to know what your life needs to be like: what do you want to do with the rest of your life?
- Listen with the heart of a child

 Purpose Meditation Play “Kitaro Ki”

Close your eyes and do some connected breathing. Just see a picture of infinity, an elongated figure 8. Relax your body, uncross your legs and float back in time. Just roll back in time.

Go back to a time when you realized that you were a real human, that you were there - a conscious being. Maybe you were 4 years old, maybe 5, 6, 7, 8 years old. If you haven't gotten in touch with that child yet, raise your hands. Create that child. Tell that part of yourself that is hiding, "be okay with that child." The rest of you be with that child. Let that child take you to a place where they felt the safest; where they felt themselves.

Now, that child knows that he/she is here to accomplish, to do, to be something. They are here because they have a job to do here, a mission. They chose this time to do a mission.

Let them tell you what they are here to do. It can be in words, a touch, a feeling. Let them tell you what they came here to accomplish.

Anyone not have anything told to them? Allow the child to show why you are here. Ask the question: "What is my purpose?"

How many got an answer you don't understand? If you do have an answer, enjoy and stay with your child. Those of you who didn't get an answer, ask that child if they trust you? Those of you that got a "no", are you willing to really commit to listening to what the child has to say? For those of you that didn't get a purpose, stay with that child until you do.

Vision Quest (18 - 24 hours 🕒)

light dinner and snacks available all night and morning

Day Four Starts after lunch (1:00 PM - 5:00 PM)

- Group Share - Vision Quest debrief.
- Work with all input, whether vision or purpose complete or not
 - Tell people to let the vision happen naturally
 - And to talk about the truth of their experience
 - The experience of truth creates space for healing
 - Address fear - what is there to be afraid of really?

Teach about receiving, really letting someone in. Whether or not you receive is very powerful:

- Our thoughts and actions affect the universe
- Receiving is an extraordinary gift to give
- When you receive negativity from another person without fighting or agreeing - healing happens:
 - It frees you from the past ➔
 - It allows the giver of negativity to see the results of their behavior ➔
 - Truly experiencing the results of negative behavior causes that behavior to cease.

Teach about Universal Principles. There are truths that exist without exceptions. Ask the group to say what those truths are for them.

Handout excerpt from "Critical Path" by Buckminster Fuller. Read together. Comments? Ask who understood? Who didn't? Who understood with their hearts but not their heads? Ask them to read it over again alone tonight and see if there is any connection that occurs to them with their purpose.

 Support people to get the clearest possible sense of purpose.

- What would their purpose give to the world?
- What end does their purpose serve?

 End day with “What One Man Can Do”

Day Five (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

Sharing

What does it take to make vision happen?

Include everyone. Everyone got something on their vision quest. What do they commit to doing to make that picture happen? Spend some time with this until all are clear about the new behaviors they are committing to.

Lunch

Keys to making your vision happen:

- Correct as you go--it is not a direct path--you have to navigate. Do the poster of the moon rocket correcting course over and over.
- Embrace mistakes - there is no learning without mistakes.
- Give up being right about your point of view. Your point of view is a small piece of a much larger puzzle and doesn't include knowing how it all fits together.
- Follow your heart to guide your growth as long as you are clear about your vision. Remember your heart does not know the difference between illusion and reality.
- If your vision hasn't been revealed to you yet, just choose a vision that is inclusive of personal responsibility until your own vision comes to you.
- Change your life style to match that vision
- Stay true to your inner knowing.

Teach about what happens when change occurs:

- It won't feel the way you thought it would.
- It won't look, smell, taste the way you thought.
- Expect darkness and chaos. Welcome it.
- Don't do anything for relief.
- No self-help books for the next month.

Assignments for next session:

- Read "The Nature of Personal Reality - a Seth Book" by Jane Roberts
- Bring in a poem that demonstrates adult relationships.

As a group agree on the location for the retreat in Session Six - Sex, Bodies and Physical Integration.

End the session with "Take Your Passion, Make it Happen" from Flashdance 🎵 (Or, if the mood is quiet choose music that matches that mood.)

ETP Session Four - Core Values

Part I:

List your 10 most important core values:

- | | |
|----|-----|
| 1) | 6) |
| 2) | 7) |
| 3) | 8) |
| 4) | 9) |
| 5) | 10) |

Why are they important to you?

What do they mean in your life?

Are you living them in your everyday life?

Part II:

List what gets in your way of not living your values:

Session Five:

Creating Adult Relationships

Session Five - Creating Adult Relationships

Instructor's note: For the rest of the ETP the participants should self-discover all the information. Ask questions that they have to search inside in order to respond to. Be sure to always address the participants as equals, assuming that they are totally responsible for what and how they are presenting themselves. We know how uncomfortable and difficult this can be. Be sure to get support from corporate offices or your trainer if you need it.

First Evening (6:00 PM - 9:00 PM)

Discuss the Seth Book and have them pass around their journals and scrapbooks.

How has their vision served them over this month. What have been some of the problems, etc.?

 General sharing and connecting. The focus of this session is on creating and maintaining adult relationships.

 What does it mean to be an adult? Have them discuss.

 What is a relationship?

 What constitutes an adult relationship?

 As they bring up these points, put up on flip chart:

- Equal = having the same value and responsibility
- Not controlling. Control = trying to change someone (including yourself) to ease your own discomfort
- No taking care of. Taking care of = trying to control someone's behavior under the guise of helping or being helpless

- Intimate - sharing yourself at the deepest level, no blaming or hiding
- Responsible - choosing the context of your relationship and acting that way no matter what

 After they are clear about what constitutes an adult relationship, have them share their poems that were their assignment from last session.

 End evening with “Let Me Sleep on It” by Meatloaf.

Day Two (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Open with sharing.

 Ask who experiences themselves having adult relationships? With their lovers? Family? Co-workers? Bosses? Friends? Children?

 If not, what is missing? What illusion do you have to let go of to have an adult relationship? Have the group support each other about this.

 Adult Relationship Exercise - Part I:

- 1) Choose groups for this session.
- 2) Now pick a relationship in your life that is not equal that you desire to be equal.
- 3) Go inside and imagine what it would be like to be adult in that relationship (10 minutes )
- 4) Tell your group members what relationship you are dealing with and what is currently going on in it.
- 5) With your group, model (role play) what an adult relationship would be like with that person. Support each other to be equal. (1 hour )

 Lunch (Continue exercise through lunch.)

 Sharing about exercise.

 Ask people to demonstrate adult relationships in all of their communication for rest of session.

 Review the model for Change. (handout)

 Have them give examples from their relationships of each stage of the model. Let them know that they will be doing "schiz - skits" on Sunday. These are demonstrations of themselves in relationship from both sides of the model: their old way and the new adult way.

 Ask them to meet in their groups tonight and share everything about their relationships and to bring each other up to date so that there still are no secrets.

 End with " Two Faces" by Bruce Springsteen

Day Three (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)
Family Day

 Welcome family members. Give them the same information about the purpose of Family Day as found in Session Two.

 Sharing. Let them know that today's focus will be on intimacy as a part of adult relationships. Review our definition of intimacy for family members: into-me-see.

 Ask people to commit to being intimate throughout the day. Have someone demonstrate intimacy.

 See if anyone has anything intimate they want to say to anyone. Or anyone not in the room.

 Work with participants and family.

 Lunch (Have them make any phone calls they need to about being intimate with someone not here.)

 Sharing, if needed.

 Adult Relationship Exercise Part II:

In your groups, talk about the relationship you were dealing with on Friday. Share how you are responsible and how you are not responsible in that relationship. All members to demonstrate intimacy, vulnerability, and responsibility.

Invite family members to support their participant in game.
(1 and 1/2 hours 🕒)

👉 Debrief the game.

👉 Invite family members to share anything.

👉 Thank them for coming.

👉 Let people know the assignment or movie for the evening.

👉 Remind the group that you will be taking a walk together tomorrow at 9:00. Let them know where.

👉 End the day with "Don't Close Your Eyes Tonight"

Day Four (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

Open Sharing.

Demonstrations - Schiz- skits and feedback.(all day)

Assignments:

- Be attracted to everyone this month
- Read : "Love, Medicine and Miracles" by B. Siegle or his next book
- Do ETP body work assignments (handout)
- Bring a bathing suit to retreat

Give people directions to retreat site.

End Session with "Unchained Melody" by The Righteous Brothers.

Day Four (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

Session Six:

Sex, Bodies and Physical Integration

Session Six: Sex, Bodies and Physical Integration A Retreat

First Evening (6:00 PM - 9:00 PM)

 Introduction to session. Reconnect, include everyone. Discuss Bernie Siegle's book and how they did in their assignment to be attracted to everyone.

-  Breaking down stereotypes.
- Imagine being totally attracted to each other and not being hooked on any pictures or history.
 - What are your feelings about sex?
 - What is your vision of yourself sexually?
 - How many people think their sexual desire is more or less than it should be? Which?
 - When do people like sex? (i.e. time preference)
 - What do people call penises? What effect do those names have? (neg/pos)
 - What do you call vaginas? What effect? (neg/pos)
 - What names do people have for the act of “making love”? What effect do those names have? (neg/pos)
 - Is sex as good physically as you desire?
 - What are your attitudes toward sex?

 End with “I Don't Like To Sleep Alone”

Day Two (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)Sharing

Share who is attracted to who. Who would you like to have sex with and why? (make it light)

What is attraction about?

Questions:

- How many women cry after orgasm? Men?
- How old were people when lost virginity?
- How many never had oral sex?
- Who is still promiscuous?
- Who has sex with opposite sex? Same sex?
- Are there things that feel good/bad? What? (If you are really connected -you automatically do what feels good.)
- Do you make love in order to feel connected?
- Who makes love when they don't want to?
- Why?
- What is more important: your joy or beliefs?

Ask people to commit to only making love when they want to. Be serious about this.

Lunch

What is sex really about? Why do people want sex? How many people think it stems from something physical?

 When we were children we were “polymorphously perverse.” This means that everything felt erotic and sensual.

 As we grew up we were conditioned to experience only some areas as erotic.

- And the areas that were forbidden were more exciting.
- The genital areas became where sexual energy collects. (Instructors note - for this session, make sure you have read, studied or practiced about tantric sex - or another esoteric practice that demonstrates where true sexuality comes from. Read Ragneesh, etc.)

 Most parents did not massage, touch or kiss us, except on the cheek, past a certain age, and for some people not at all. Why? What belief did that create?

 Do you love every part of your body. And allow others to love your body as it is. (This is an assignment that participants need to commit to even if it takes the rest of the program.) One way to ask them to do it is:

Take off all your clothes and look in a mirror. As each judgement about your body appears, follow it with a positive thought. Continue this process until there are no more negative thoughts.

 Sex comes from a need to merge-connect-oneness.

- orgasm is the act of "coming home"
- You experience God. The individual ego dies.
- Sex is one way you can explore the soul.
 - one of the fastest tools to get to enlightenment
 - laughter, when making love, is nectar of gods

- Tantric sexuality (need to define here)--when kundalini rises--through spinal cord--through all chakras--ends in illuminating third eye. When both partners experience kundalini → enlightenment!

Preparation for evening assignment:

- Give up all pictures on how it's supposed to be.
- What is attraction - It is the experience of the groin projected onto others. It's about something that is unresolved, something we are looking to complete. Be compassionate with yourself.
- Choose your groups for this session.
- In your groups, share your sexual autobiographies. Include all your sexuality issues; don't let anything go by.

End with “I’m on Fire” by Bruce Springsteen 🎵

Day Three (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

Group share from assignment.

- Discuss content. How you were in group is how you are in relationship (e.g. hog time, hold back).

Discuss the power of words in speaking. When you speak you are creating/manifesting.

Discuss judgements: you are drawn to what you judge and will always leave yourself. If you judge anything, you become part of that judgement.

- Do you act the way you "should be" vs. how you are? This can create sexual problems - i.e. premature ejaculation, frigidity, impotence.

Lunch

Talk about shifting patterns: a behavior and the result of the behavior are put together in time - both create the pattern.

- In order to shift a pattern, timing is critical. For rewiring to occur:
 - you need to activate your will
 - you need to choose a new behavior in that moment of the "either/or"--you replace the patterned behavior with one that matches your vision.
 - the new belief system you design will be imprinted with the shifts in behavior

 Ask yourself: "Does what I do create the results I want? Does it bring higher thoughts?" "Does it bring me joy?" Decide how you are going to be.

 Share the most important thing you discovered about yourself sexually so far this session.

 Name what you consider the most powerful sexual issue you want to heal. Go deep.

 Evening assignment: with your group's support, understand who/how you are sexually, and the truth about you and your body. Create two visions: your true vision of who you want to be sexually; and how you want your body to look.

 End with "Almost Paradise"

Day Four (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Sharing about bodies and sex.

 Your body is your past. It is the result of your beliefs, patterning and history--how it looks, how it feels, whether it is healthy, how supple it is, how much pleasure it affords you is all a result of your beliefs and history.

 Do a piece using the Louise Hay book "Heal Your Body" to demonstrate the beliefs behind participants' physical stuff. Make it interesting, but not too long. Let them look up all their ailments during dinner.

 Let them know that they need to wear their bathing suits tomorrow because they will be talking about their bodies, and sharing their body autobiographies; what they have done with them and what they have learned about their beliefs from looking at them.

 Commitment = how change happens:

- Change due to outside stimulation DOESN'T LAST
 - read excerpt from "Black Butterfly" pg.149 - 153. (From beginning of chapter 10 to end of first paragraph on page 153.)
- Commit based on what's INSIDE.
 - e.g. Do you feel beautiful inside? Live the way a beautiful person lives and your body will reflect that.
 - What are the qualities of a beautiful woman (or man) in a committed relationship?

- Allowing yourself to stay stuck in an old pattern erodes self-love; getting unstuck (creating a new pattern) gives space for more self-love.

When self-love is real, it becomes the pathway to love another. Without self-love, the love you feel for others is a projection.

- Commit because you have decided to - not because you are "ready", you will never be "ready."

Lunch (They eat with groups and continue discussion.)

Physical integration. You chose yourself to be the way you are. Choose something new.

- Our bodies are our history manifested
- Feelings are mostly reactions to our history
- Experiment with new behaviors and see what coincides with your commitment - come from creation.
- Love every part of your body and allow others to love it just the way it is.

Explain how physical integration relates to clarity of expression:

- Aspects of the physical, spiritual and emotional are centered and manifest in the body.
- The body is the instrument, the recorder of experience.
 - When you allow your experience, wisdom is disseminated throughout your cells. You get the information through your body as it becomes physically integrated.

- You have greater clarity when you get your information from your experience rather than your interpretations.

 Your body is the home for your soul. Take a long walk and be with yourself, not anyone else. Let yourself experience life through your body. (2 hours or until dinner)

 Evening assignments:

- During dinner, notice every interpretation, every judgement you have. Don't take them seriously, just be a "fair witness" to them and let them go.
- After dinner, in your groups, share about your body any way you want to. Go as far as you need to go to let the group know you.
- Later tonight, alone, do your own body autobiography (how your body has served you - how it's hurt, felt good, etc.)
- Wear your bathing suit tomorrow morning.

 End with "You Are So Beautiful"  by Joe Cocker

Day Five (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM)

 Share your body autobiography with the group. Do it in just a bathing suit.

 Lunch

 Continue body autobiographies if not finished.

 Talk about mother/son/daughter and father-daughter-son relationships:

- When parents aren't adult with their children (i.e. flirt with them, be needy around them) it creates a sexualized relationship.
- This is not confronted in our culture except when the feelings are acted out dramatically--there is no acceptable outlet.
- If we (or our parents) are repulsed by our (sexual) feelings/experience, we act them out. (incest, staying little with our mates, physical abuse)
- This projection onto our children gets acted out in the same format that any of our negative unconscious projections occur.

 Final sharing, closing, getting ready for integrity.

 Assignments:

- Sex - Only make love when you both truly want to. During lovemaking, share everything no matter what (all thoughts/feelings). Stop if you need to.

- Bodies - Notice what you do with your body when you feel uncomfortable in your body (i.e. eat, sleep) Notice what is automatic--it is an opportunity for reprogramming.
- Make a list of every place you are out of integrity (hand out integrity check list). Bring with you to next session.
 - integrity is important in order to have a clear path to your vision
- Check your intention before you speak.

End with “Under African Skies” by Paul Simon

Session Seven: Personal Integrity

Session Seven - Personal Integrity

First Evening (6:00 PM - 9:00 PM)

Go over the assignments

 Spend the first evening reviewing sessions on responsibility and vision. Make sure they understand the context of these teachings. Connect.

 Have them decide as a group (meeting in small groups) to what level personal responsibility and integrity are necessary for living the life they chose on their vision quest. Have them be very concise and clear about what they do not want to be in integrity about. This part is very important. It sets the tone for experiencing the results of choices and mandates accountability.

 The instructor's role is to facilitate.

 End evening with “I Am an Island”  by Simon and Garfunkle

Day Two (10:00 AM - 5:00 PM) Truth or Consequences

Divide the participants into groups of 3. Handout the Truth or Consequences questionnaire to each participant.

Truth or Consequences

What is your perception of your childhood?

What is the condition of your relationships with your friends, lovers, spouses, children, parents now? Which ones are not working and why?

What results in your life are you not responsible for? Who is responsible and why? Please answer as honestly as you can.

What is your vision for you, for your family, for your business?

What is your financial condition? Do you owe any money for which you do not have an agreed-upon plan to pay back? Does anyone owe you any money that does not have an agreed-upon plan?

Since the last session on bodies and sex, do you have a physical program for your fitness? What is it? How do you feel about your body now?

How is your sex life? Please explain.

Do you have any health problems not being dealt with? Or, any chronic physical conditions not being treated?

Do you have material possessions that are not supportive to your vision and your health? What are they?

 Direct them to take turns answering each question. As each participant gives his or her answers, the other two members of the group will be the "integrity patrol."

 The purpose of this exercise is only to discover what the truth is. We do not want to do anything about it. This process should take the entire day.

 The instructor's role is to facilitate the groups. Move around, be a catalyst. Only offer support when the group is stuck. It is not up to you to tell people to change. It is totally up to them to decide how to live their lives.

 The rest of the time is spent going over each question with each group. The participants decide how to handle each item that is not working for them.

 Have them continue the game in the evening until they are all satisfied.

 End with "I Shall be Released"

ETP 1

Session Eight

When you name a sensation, it is a feeling. That name was either okay or not okay. If it wasn't okay, create something to step apart from it (cheerful, sad if anger is not okay).

In the unconditional love base where we live are no feelings. Just physical sensation in that sea, until they are named. When they are named, we become attached. That sea of bliss (unconditional love) gets filled with feelings.

Go through the pain to get to the feeling. The pain is the separation from self. In order to go to the core, go through the pain...the anger or sadness keep you from the pain. Any feeling that wasn't allowed in your family is the one that will keep you from your pain.

To go to the source, go to the experience that was most uncomfortable.

The pain comes from not being allowed to experience the feeling. Pain is what was put up as the defense against the experience—a fight.

Emotional pain translates into physical damage. When you breathe into your pain it changes. Pain is an illusion in the mind. The minute you leave the sensation and it becomes a thought, it is a reaction. Are you in pain; you are in reaction.

We are human and we want certain emotions: compassion, sadness, empathy, sympathy, love. We don't want certain reactions: depression, cheerful.

We want to experience the joy and sadness—the feeling. Go as close to the physical sensation as you can get.

MEDITATION

During this, we are children

1. Could breathe
2. Ask to see the child and ask what the problem is
3. Tell the child that you'll be there too
4. Tell each child that shows up the truth...clear up the misinterpretation.
Tell them they are beautiful and X
5. When not in reaction, ask to see a picture of the child
6. Say to heart, "Tell me what's really true." The heart will never judge, blame, intellect. It gets you to freedom. The heart will always go to the biggest picture and is always in the present moment.

Make sure the adult is doing the talking. Ask your universal mind and your universal heart the question. The head, when really intentioned for the truth, can pick up on universal information. The proof is that defense is always reaction.

Eliminate the thought and then breathe. The thought is rarely the truth—if you have a hurtful thought it is not the truth. The thought is a protection to keep the sensation away. Saying “I'm not good enough” is always an escape.

Feeling joyful is not in our training. Whenever people get close they have to fight.

We are pioneers in relationships:

- to be in relationships where there is not criticism or judgement
- not having our partners be this way or that way
- not less than or more than

No one knows how. It's not our model. We have to give up our history.

We are moving from the mind to integrating the heart and the mind.

Atlantis/Lemuria-the Land of Mu

In this land of love everything was heart. People began moving toward more understanding of the mind,toward Atlantis.

Moved from using crystals from healing to worshipping crystals; from building buildings to being in awe of them. A lot of the sound of Lemuria came back now.

We went to a period of left brain. The whole person isn't looked at.

This information is a universal principal. It is what is.

*We have to get that we are responsible for our own experience.

When you go to the new behavior enough times and in enough situations, you are over the hump. The words good and bad will be different and you will have a different experience:

If someone says to you, “You just hurt my feelings,” (and they are blaming you for how you're feeling) you won't get hurt. Instead you might feel compassion or empathy.

Are you committed?

It feels like I am. What it feels like has nothing to do with it. Your feelings are not important. Most of them are waves running through you. Your vision, goals and decisions—what you choose is important.

It is great to be on the roller coaster.

What do you choose?

The difference between the mind and body is important. The choices are important. We have a feeling and we want to hold it. We think that anything after that is not good. It will be a roller coaster if we stay with what we are learning.

Relationships are not power struggles if both parties agree, even if it looks that way. For example, you keep the house and I'll make the money.

Always ask the question even if you think you know the answer. You can never be sure.

Pioneer work for the kids today.

Unconditional love is white. It erases history.

It can be just like that—'snap' in—and 'snap' out. The times in between will be smaller and smaller. "I am ready to start a fight. Stay with me. Don't take it personally." When you are both in a fight, take a deep breath. Then take back everything you put on the other person.

If the aggressiveness is based on a reaction to being vulnerable, then it's one thing. If you're aggressive as part of fun, it's a different situation. If you're surrendering, it's healthy; if it's acquiescing, it's not healthy.

Being yourself is being who you are when you're not in reaction. It is fluid. Not structured. No this way or that way. There is no right way to be yourself.

We are new every moment. Response-ability—Respond in the moment.

(??) We have chosen follies—beets, tuna from the can, a clean house.

If your partner doesn't want a clean house and you do, you probably wouldn't live with them. What is your vision of yourself? For the relationship?

If your vision is to have a synergistic relationship, don't act competitive.

What do you do with stuff against your vision? Share it. "Right now I want to kill you but it's not in our best interest." "Right now I feel intimate and I want to..."

SATURDAY AM

Sharing by asking each other any question you haven't asked.

When something goes inside and sticks, alchemize it into nothing. Transform it.

When someone who is in reaction talks, what is your response to yourself? Observe, notice, have your feelings, stay with yourself (don't bury into the reactions), see yourself.

Notice your reaction to your own experience. Someone talks and you have an experience. Everything from there is yours. Analysis might be correct but it is a story about the experience, even if it's the truth.

How you experience what someone else does and says gives you information about you.

Is it okay that someone is not willing to jump off of the mountain?

Say what's true:

"I want you to jump. I want to be your friend." Say it once, and say it for you.

Who are we to judge what is best for someone? Let people take care of their own experience. Otherwise, it is control.

We try to make people not feel a certain way.

Jump off with ropes attached.

Demonstration-two ways:

How we are with them and how they are with us.

Own what is so you're not dividing yourself. An experience of connection where you are all that is. No boundaries. No separation.

The commitment and intention is enough to steer you toward that place of connection. The fear is strong to not experience what you are experiencing—lust, anger, joy—something not fitting your pictures. This could be anything.

You need to jump off of the mountain. Trust.

Do I know myself? Just commit to be in the moment. Either you are your history or in the moment. You are either a wave or a particle.

Example of Judith wanting to be the youngest 60 year old, so she needs to act in a way that supports that vision.

One of the tricks to not judging yourself is to stop judging others. Knowing that the judgements are illusions, stay with it. See that it is you putting part of you on them. Example of Judith seeing an ugly man and she couldn't stand looking at him because of her fears of being ugly. She took her ugliness fears and made the guy ugly. Nothing is ugly or beautiful—it just is.

What does it mean if you feel something? What does it mean to you when someone x?

Why would you defend something that you think is great?

If you have a castle, you don't need to defend. It's only when you feel vulnerable that you defend. We won't have any control of another's experience. We do have the ability to know our intention at the deepest level. When you tell someone they are a horse's ass, maybe you are; or maybe you are the most enlightened. Then you would need to explore that.

Going that step closer to the core will cause resistance. You judge yourself. Then you punish. Risk putting it out.

Healing occurs in the person when they get seen at the level they are sharing. Healing won't occur if you are beside yourself. If you get to the root of what you feel in someone else's presence, you won't judge that person again.

Therapist: "I'm afraid if you don't shift you'll hurt yourself."
Choices: "I feel gross in your presence."

What is true in the group?

The comment that addresses your embarrassment binds with your own belief.

If you are always late, be that way. The other person can show up later or bring a book. Don't say, "You're always late."

We are all equal and we all act out. Share our feelings so the other person gets space. Then they have to go inside.

Example of drinking: If you share your feelings about it, the other person could hardly drink.

Say, "I miss you."

How could someone attack you? Say nothing.

If someone says you are inconsiderate, you would not feel bad unless you thought you were.

You cannot be hurt by another person.

Is it possible to be hurt?

Hurt is a physical sensation.

Put into a framework (hurt).

If you really loved me you would tell the truth because you know it's important to me.

How you feel and what you think is about you. How we talk about it is about us.

If you think someone is not keeping their word, focus on what you aren't keeping your word about.

Hurt comes from a lie we tell ourselves about ourselves. It is different from pain of sadness or grief of loss. It looks and feels like someone else can do something to you underneath hurt is reality.(?) In the moment, we will experience it as though it is true. It is our true experience but not true about the other. It is when you put the unhealed child out into the world to get healed. Every time you get hurt by somebody is an opportunity to heal.

"I pull it out of you so I can heal it."

Until you are willing to be totally responsible for yourself, you won't have these contacts. You have to be grounded to have this.

The difference between a visit and a dream is that you have emotion in a visit.

Archetypically, to make love with your parents is to make space to make love with others.

When you do something against your traditions, and you only recognize the fun side, the other side goes conscious. The unconscious part is the problem.

If you have to be perfect, you can never say, "Yes, I might be wrong."

As you give up victim, etc., you get more powerful.

Things repeat themselves in family and society until they are understood (conscious) and healed.

Defense-you are hooked and in agreement with what was accused.

Don't ever make an agreement with someone else (because) so that it makes you feel better.

When you have those awful feelings, do you believe your feelings come from you? Believe you are responsible for your feelings. Believe the best of other people.

Real guilt-when we are out of integrity with ourselves.
Culture guilt and approval guilt-values that come from society and are shoved down your throat.

Song by POCO-Follow Your Dreams

Parents model to their children inside and outside.
When a father hits you, you get terror and the rage. He got the terror in the hit.

If a mother feels angry when she breast feeds and doesn't recognize it, the child gets the anger and associates it with the food. If she says, "I'm angry right now, it's not about you," she doesn't act out or pretend that it's not there and she can keep it from seeping out.

SUNDAY

You need to create the will and the space to change. If the person were talking you wouldn't feel sad, if the person would talk you'd feel the emotion.

When someone is impersonal they are in reaction.

Not having a career is an issue when you don't value not having a career.

enter → illusion → exit → denial

Be able to be flexible instead of having it be a certain way. Be comfortable in the grey.

Being seen is allowing people to see.
Exposing yourself is talking about yourself.

Saying something two or three times comes from wanting to be heard. If you want to handle this piece, really listen to what others say.

Scheduled a date for a follow-up session

ASSIGNMENT

Write down what you are going to do between now and the July follow-up session and send it to Judith. She will send the information to the group.
