

NOW

I had just one desire- to give myself completely to God. So I headed for the monastery. An old monk asked me, "What is it you want?"

I said, " I just want to give myself to God."

I expected him to be gentle, fatherly, but he shouted at me, "NOW!" I was stunned. He shouted again, "NOW!" Then he reached for a club and came after me. I turned and ran. He kept coming after me, brandishing his club and shouting, "Now, Now."

That was years ago. He still follows me, wherever I go. Always that stick, always that "NOW!"

The Kama Sutra of Kindness: Position Number 3

It's easy to love
through a cold spring
when the poles
of the willows
turn green
pollen falls like a yellow curtain
and the scent of Paper Whites
clots
the air
but to love for a lifetime
takes talent
you have to mix yourself
with the strange beauty of someone else
wake each morning
for 72,000
mornings in a row so breathed and bound and tangled
that you can hardly sort out
your arms
and legs
you have to find forgiveness
in everything
even ink stains
and broken cups
you have to be willing to move through life

together
the way the long grasses move
in a field
when you careen blindly toward the other side
there's never going to be anything straight or predictable
about your path
except the flattening
and the springing back
you just go on walking for years
hand in hand
waist deep in the weeds
bent slightly forward
like two question
marks
and all the while it burns
my dear
it burns beautifully above
you and goes on burning
like a relentless
sun

- Mary Mackey

COMMITMENT

Until one is committed
there is hesitancy, the chance to draw back,
always ineffectiveness.

Concerning all acts of initiative (and creation)
there is one elementary truth,
the ignorance of which kills countless ideas
and splendid plans:
that the moment one definitely commits oneself,
then Providence moves too.
All sorts of things occur to help one that would otherwise never have occurred.
A whole stream of events issues from the decision,
raising in one's favor all manner of unforeseen incidents and meetings and material assistance
which no man could have dreamt
would have come his way.
I have learned a deep respect
for one of Goethe's couplets:

"Whatever you can do, or dream you can...begin it. Boldness has genius, power and magic in it."

W.N. Murray, The Scottish Himalayan Expedition, 1951

weren't bombarded by the ever-continuing stimuli of the TV, internet, news and global connections. We are in relationships, we work, have families and interact in numerous ways every day.

IS THIS NEW?

This ancient wisdom, once hidden and difficult to understand, is now available to everyone. Radical Love provides the opportunity to explore our uniqueness, while recognizing we are not separate. We laugh, we share, we experience who we really are.

As this becomes natural, we notice the slipping away of hardened points of view, opinions, negative commentary, replaced with spontaneity, quiet insight, empowered relationships and deep trust in being held by Radical Love as awareness.

People label, evaluate and explain their sensations.

It's the judgment that creates pain. Covering up our sensations and feelings removes us from our true experience.

As our cover-ups got reinforced and repeated with consistency, they became an unnoticed pattern.

Action

Share with someone some of the judgments you have of yourself.

What Emotions Are

Emotions are simply waves of energy that help define who we are. We can think of ourselves as radio receivers and each of our stations contain different emotions. Each station has a different frequency and pulls in different emotions.

Emotions exist both inside and outside of us simultaneously. When an external stimulus occurs that resonates with an emotional state inside of us, we respond. Based on our histories, these responses can be positive or negative. Based on our interpretations, we can react or have a learning experience.

What happens to those emotions? Do they stay inside us? All emotions eventually move through us unless we don't allow ourselves to experience them.

It is important to experience them and choose our actions based on our purpose. Living based on our purpose is always our best choice and each time we do this, there is a shift in our reality.

All emotions pass through as temporary waves or fluctuations, unless they are not allowed to be experienced. Then they get stuck and become particles. They become strange and you can't feel them anymore. The feelings we do not experience are the ones that run us.

When there is resistance to experiencing a certain emotion, it gets stuck inside. If a feeling doesn't go through you but gets stuck, it does something. It has a powerful effect. Who knows what it is?

Stuck feelings stay inside you and color your experience of what you see without your conscious awareness that this is happening.

For example, if a person is not able to feel afraid, they live in fear all the time and are not aware of it. So what's the problem? Who wants to feel afraid?

The problem is that if you don't feel it – you become it. Your unexperienced fear filters everything. You see dangers where there are not any.

Every time we were stopped from being our natural self, we both fought and obeyed. Every child believes its parents.

Do any of you ever feel compelled to do or not do something? What?

Every time you are in a reaction from your childhood. It's as if you are back then and the people you are with have control over you. You are repeating the pattern you learned in your childhood about what was okay to feel and not feel, and the judgments and the cover-ups.

Reaction – The Inner Professor

A reaction is an unconscious response from the past to a present situation.

Whenever we believe we do not have a choice in how we respond to a situation we are not in the present. We are having a reaction. We may feel compelled to behave in a particular way, we may feel inappropriately frightened or excited; we may not be able to speak or feel like we can't stop talking.

Everyone has reactions. In fact, we believe they provide an inner motivation to help us to learn throughout our life. They are our inner professor. When they appear, it is time to learn.

People operate from different worlds. There is the life of mind, emotions and, spirit. All of these worlds propel us to take action. Most of us live in the world of our feelings, which is based on our history. If something happened before, we expect it will happen again. This expectation prevents us from taking risks and behaving in new ways. So we prove ourselves right over and over. Many people believe they are living in the world of logic and rationality. It may feel like that, but unless we feel our emotions and choose our behavior based on our purpose, we are being controlled by those very emotions that we are ignoring.

When we add purpose and self-awareness to our decision making process, our world begins to change. We understand that much of our thinking and feeling comes from our history and we can then choose the behaviors that are true to our purpose.

As we eliminate a reaction, another one takes its place. It is a never-ending process and one that brings great learning and unlimited possibilities of joy and freedom.

Here's how it works:

1. When we are little, we do not know we are a separate person from our parents.
2. Teenagers go for independence.
3. Maturity means going for synergy and interdependence.

Most people do not get over stage one or two. Because in order to do so, we have to give up a part of our identity, of how we see ourselves.

to be true all your emotions

- They are not just feelings, they also contain wisdom
- A person who has all their emotions sees more and is smarter and healthier.
- Emotions are the fuel behind passion
- They are the cup of compassion
- You can't see others unless you can see yourself.

Assume that you have the power to create. When behavior from old patterns is changed, the old system begins to disintegrate and we experience a void - which is the birth of creation. Consistent new behavior creates a new system.

Most people have had the experience of having a worthwhile goal that they really believed in, but which never materialized, despite their best efforts.

Our results are a direct reflection of our level of self-awareness.

We may be driven by powerful, unconscious core beliefs that are not aligned with our conscious desired results.

Winter 2012 Living the Future Now

February 24 - 26 & March 23 - 25, 2012

This program is a 2 weekend, 6 day program with four weekly conference calls in between weekends. It is an immersion course into Radical Love exploring:

- The Nature of Conditioning – the human experience
- The Nature of the Unconditioned – the human experience
- Receiving What Is – the metaphysics of beneficial relationship
- Experiencing What Is – the practical metaphysics of natural authenticity in relationship
- Free Choice
- Coming Home – living what is and eliminating conflict, making a difference

The requested tuition for this program is $1500.00 USD, which includes all course materials, coffee, tea, and snacks. All are ^Welcome. We have a sliding scale for all of our programs, please contact rae@radicallovefoundation.org for a fee reduction applications.

releasing family & ancestral accountability
Integrity
Global Responsibility
Leadership ~~parenting~~ vision - beliefs - values
purpose

Science

Knowledge Transfer

Candace Pert, Disappaitive Structure

According to Dr. Candace Pert, author of Molecules of Emotion, our physiology is literally run by our emotions. That is, emotions produce concrete chemical reactions coursing everywhere within the body. Each specific emotion is vibrating at a different speed and altering the chemical makeup of the body/mind in different ways. Emotions can cause energy blocks in the body, and science is now recognizing that certain unexpressed emotions contribute greatly to disease in the body.

Through physics we learn that everything in the Universe is energy—literally everything. This includes our thoughts, feelings, beliefs and emotions, all composed of various frequencies of electrical energy. For most of us, we think of energy as being something "outside of us." It is, however, the reason we exist in the first place.

I want to touch you with my naked sweetness

I want to be known to you fully.

If only you stop describing me

If only you stop thinking about me

If only you could be silent now.

By: Guthema Roba

Knowledge is not the same as data or information. It is the precursor to wisdom if connected to the emotions and the spiritual being. Knowledge implies understanding, discernment, and the ability to make generalizations into like areas and to apply the information learned strategically.

Science

Real learning and knowledge transfer requires what Prigogine* called a bifurcation in the brain to a higher order of understanding. This is called a dissipative structure.

- Memories, including deeply entrenched patterns of behavior and thought, are dissipative structures—capable of sudden enlargement. They are patterns of forms stored in the brain.
- Small fluctuations in a dissipative structure are suppressed by the existing form; they have no lasting effect. [Traditional training usually falls in this category.]
- But larger fluctuations of energy cannot be contained in the old structure. They set off ripples throughout the system creating sudden new connections [a bifurcation.]
- Thus, old patterns are likeliest to change when maximally perturbed or shaken - activated in states of consciousness in which there is significant energy flow. [Cognitive dissonance]
- This activation needs to be precipitated with loving support and feedback, while allowing discomfort

- And the perturbation that provokes the new order helps force the shift to a new paradigm.

Transferring knowledge requires that the information transmitted remains intact as intended and not interpreted or altered to fit the old or familiar ways of thinking. This is a critical component of the process. We create real learning, behavior change and knowledge transfer.

Our approach to learning is revolutionary.

Instead of training we transform.

Instead of teaching, we create learning.

Instead of just talking to peoples heads, we engage the whole person.

The reason for our success at designing and delivering effective learning is the application of a multifaceted process developed and learned over time.

Knowledge transfer occurs via the generation, integration, and presentation of material using techniques which now appear to be almost effortless.

Our knowledge transfer technology falls into two categories: design and facilitation.

Now, there is a secret. The secret is your moment to moment actions are the way to live your purpose on earth. Not intentions, potential, thoughts, feelings, beliefs... but what you actually do. Suppose you don't have to change anything to live your purpose.

In order to live freely we open ourselves to life as it is. That includes all emotions, thoughts and experiences. As children, whenever we demonstrated certain feelings, we were told how to be that was more acceptable to our families. Why did our parents stop us from being our natural selves?

Every time we were stopped from being our natural self, we both fought and obeyed. Every child believes its parents for a while.

Do any of you ever feel compelled to do or not do something?

What?

Every time you hide your full experience from yourself you are in a trance state, repeating your childhood experiences. You are repeating the pattern you learned in your childhood about what was okay to feel and not feel, and the judgments and the cover-ups.

Our emotions contain wisdom. They are the fuel of passion and the cup of compassion.

Personal Responsibility - Reaction

Integrity Pattern and Pitfalls

The Pattern of Integrity	Pitfalls to Lack of Integrity
Vulnerable	Rigid
Clarity	Illusion
Congruence	Denial
Able to receive support	Suspicion
Proactive	Reactive
Responsible	Projecting
Spontaneity	Control
Choice	Default

How will you handle your integrity issues?

Negative Bonding

All of us have experienced hurtful situations in many different ways in our lives. What we do with those hurtful situations will, in large part, determine our freedom and happiness.

People often bond with others around the “injuries” they share. We call this negative bonding, the whirlpool effect.

What can happen when people don't pay attention to the direction of their energy use is that they can get caught in a whirlpool of negativity.

When people are attracted to others because of their "injuries", or because of how they felt victimized in their past, they perpetuate a mindset—and resulting behaviors—that constantly saps them of constructive energy and focus. It is when we define or identify ourselves as victims, or focus on our history, that this is a problem. We cannot avoid responding from the reaction of victimization, and we exclude, without even knowing it, the choices we have for ourselves in the present moment.

Emotions are simply waves, like a type of energy, that originate in us in response to outside stimuli.

But then, what happens to those emotions? Do they stay? All emotions, unless they are not experienced or denied, eventually move through you

They're simply temporary waves.

The point is, we want to experience (not necessarily express!) them, and choose our actions despite them.

Everyone experiences reactions. Your job is to be aware of yours.

Look at Love.../Rumi Look at Love... how it tangles with the one fallen in love look at spirit how it fuses with earth giving it new life why are you so busy with this or that or good or bad pay attention to how things blend why talk about all the known and the unknown see how unknown merges into the known why think separately of this life and the next when one is born from the last look at your heart and tongue one feels but deaf and dumb the other speaks in words and signs look at water and fire earth and wind enemies and friends all at once the wolf and the lamb the lion and the deer far away yet together look at the unity of this spring and winter manifested in the equinox you too must mingle my friends since the earth and the sky are mingled just for you and me be like sugarcane sweet yet silent don't get mixed up with bitter words my beloved grows right out of my own heart how much more union can there be translated by Nader Khalili

Cause + effect

Consider what I am saying as possible without comparing or relating it to anything you know.